CONTENTS

List of illustrations vii
Notes on contributors xi
Acknowledgements xiii

Introduction
Ross Anderson and Maximilian Sternberg 1

Part One: Beginnings and transformations of the modern sacred 11

1 Architecture and the question of ‘the’ sacred Peter Carl 13

2 Romantic Kunstreligion and the search for the sacred in modern architecture: From Schinkel’s Altes Museum as ‘aesthetic church’ to Zumthor’s Bruder Klaus Field Chapel as Gesamtkunstwerk and ‘heavenly cave’ Gabriele Bryant 37

3 The Ordinary as the extraordinary: Modern sacred architecture in Germany, the United States and Japan Kathleen James-Chakraborty 56

4 Città dei Morti: Alvar Aalto’s funerary architecture Sofia Singler 73

Part Two: Buildings for modern worship 89

5 Light, form and formación: Daylighting, church building and the work of the Valparaiso School Mary Ann Steane 91

6 Reading, storing and parading the book: Between tradition and modernity in the synagogue Gerald Adler 108
Contents

7 Compacting civic and sacred: Goodhue’s University of Chicago Chapel and the modern metropolis
Stephen Gage 125

8 A diaspora of modern sacred form: Auguste Perret, Le Corbusier and Paul Valéry
Karla Cavarra Britton 143

9 Structure for spirit in The Architectural Review and The Architects’ Journal, 1945–70
Sam Samarghandi 159

Part Three: Semi-sacred settings in the cultural topography of modernity 179

10 Revelatory earth: Adolphe Appia and the prospect of a modern sacred
Ross Anderson 181

11 Anagogical themes in Schwitters’ Kathedrale des erotischen Elends
Matthew Mindrup 196

12 Modern medievalisms: Curating the sacred at the Schnütgen Museum in Cologne (1932–9)
Maximilian Sternberg 208

13 Architecture, politics and the sacred in military monuments of Fascist Italy
Hannah Malone 222

14 Atmosphere of the sacred: The awry in music, cinema, architecture
Michael Tawa 241

Bibliography 255
Index 273