Rethinking ‘Classical Yoga’
and Buddhism

Meditation, Metaphors and Materiality

Karen O’Brien-Kop
Contents

List of tables viii
Preface ix
Acknowledgements x
List of abbreviations xii
Note on translation and transliterations xiv

Introduction: 'Classical yoga' and Buddhism: Debates, dialogue and intertextuality 1
1 Mokṣa, metaphors and materiality: Concepts and contexts of 'liberation' 21
2 Seeds of bondage and freedom: Eliminating the afflictions (klesas) in the Pāṭaṭ̄jala-yogaśāstra and the Abhidharmakośabhāṣya 49
3 The 'other' yoga śāstra: The Yogācārabhūmiśāstra 75
4 Pāṭaṭ̄jala yoga and yogācāra: The cultivation of the counterstate 95
5 Who put the classical in 'classical yoga'? The inadequacy of an analytical category 113

Conclusion: Rethinking 'classical yoga' – a categorical paradigm shift? 143

Appendix 1: A note on the title Pāṭaṭ̄jala-yogaśāstra 155
Appendix 2: Classical Indian metaphor theory 157
Appendix 3: Structure of the Yogācārabhūmiśāstra 159
Notes 161
Bibliography 225
Index 253