RELIGION AS CRITIQUE

Islamic Critical Thinking from Mecca to the Marketplace

Irfan Ahmad

The University of North Carolina Press
Chapel Hill
Contents

Preface xi
Acknowledgments xvii
Notes on Transliteration xxiii

PROLOGUE 1

PART I

Formulation

1  INTRODUCTION 7
The Ubiquitous Absence, or the Received Wisdom 7
The Absent Ubiquity, or the Argument 13
Amartya Sen and The Argumentative Indian 19
Design of Intervention 25

2  CRITIQUE: Western and/or Islamic 30
The Enlightenment as Ethnicity 34
Anthropology and Critique 49
Reconfiguring the Axial Age: Critique before the Enlightenment 54
Islam as Critique 56

3  THE MODES: Another Genealogy of Critique 63
Critique—Tanqīd/Naqd—in Urdu 64
Elements of an Alternative Genealogy 72
Religion and Literature: Believing Ghalib 76
Divine Critique 80
PART II
Illustration

4 • THE MESSAGE: A Critical Enterprise 91
   Maududi Dereified 94
   Frame and Method: The Permanence of Ijtiḥād and ‘Aql 99
   The Postulates 109
   The Aims 116

5 • THE STATE: (In)dispensable, Desirable, Revisable? 120
   Rupture and Continuity 123
   Forceful Arguments 135
   Recovering Universalism 140
   Exceptions of the State 151

6 • THE DIFFERENCE: Women and (In)equality 154
   Maududi’s Janus-Like Neopatriarchate 158
   Neopatriarchate in Its Place: Multiple Critiques 163
   Context of Transformation 173
   Terms for Use 176

7 • THE MUNDANE: Critique as Social-Cultural Practice 179
   Critique in Movement 182
   Homo Ḍhidmatīqs 190
   Critique in Everyday Life: The Power of Proverbs 195
   The Greed of the Mullah, the Creed of the Ungodly 196

   Epilogue 203
   Notes 209
   Bibliography 223
   Index 257