

Policing and Punishment in London, 1660–1750

Urban Crime and the Limits of Terror

J. M. BEATTIE

OXFORD
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

---

List of Tables, Figures, and Map	xv
List of Illustrations	xvii
List of Abbreviations	xviii
1. INTRODUCTION: THE CRIME PROBLEM	1
Themes	1
The City of London and criminal administration	6
Patterns of prosecution	17
The meaning of crime	40
The problem of women	63
Conclusion	71
PART I: POLICING AND PROSECUTION
2. THE CITY MAGISTRATES AND THE PROCESS OF PROSECUTION	77
Police and policing before the Fieldings	77
Policing the City	86
London magistrates and the prosecution of crime	91
The Guildhall magistrates' court	108
3. CONSTABLES AND OTHER OFFICERS	114
The City constables	114
Authority and work	120
Appointment and character	134
Deputy constables	140
Repeated and active service	150
City marshals	158
Beadles	163
4. POLICING THE NIGHT STREETS	169
The problem of the night	169
The making of a paid night watch	173

'A few weak and feeble men': how effective were watchmen?	197
Street lighting	207
5. DETECTION AND PROSECUTION: THIEF-TAKERS, 1690–1720	226
Thief-takers and constables in the 1690s	228
Thief-takers and receivers, 1700–1720	247
PART II: PROSECUTION AND PUNISHMENT
6. THE OLD BAILEY IN THE LATE SEVENTEENTH CENTURY	259
Trial procedure	259
Jurors and jury practice	264
Penal ideas and practices before 1660	277
Punishment in practice, 1660–1689	282
7. THE REVOLUTION, CRIME, AND PUNISHMENT IN LONDON, 1690–1713	313
Parliament and the criminal law: ideas and experiments	315
The Old Bailey, 1690–1713	338
The cabinet and the management of death at Tyburn	346
Pardons and the penal crisis	362
8. CRIME AND THE STATE, 1714–1750	370
Crime and the Hanoverian succession	370
The policy of massive rewards	376
The state and prosecution	384
Rewards and thief-taking, 1730–1750	401
Policing and prosecution at mid-century	417
9. WILLIAM THOMSON AND TRANSPORTATION	424
Thomson as recorder of London	424
The Transportation Acts	427
Thomson and the new penal order	432
Tyburn: the uses of capital punishment	448
10. CONCLUSION	463
Bibliography of Manuscript Sources	476
Index	483