TRIBUNAL SECRETARIES IN INTERNATIONAL ARBITRATION

J. Ole Jensen
CONTENTS

Table of Cases xxiii
Table of Legal Instruments xxxi
List of Abbreviations xliii

Introduction
I. The Division of Labour in International Arbitration 0.01
II. Perceived Lack of Legitimacy 0.04
III. The Purpose of the Book 0.07
IV. Methodology 0.11
V. The Scope and Structure of the Book 0.15

I. CONCEPTUAL FOUNDATIONS

1. Third-Party Support to Arbitral Tribunals: History and Taxonomy
   I. Tribunal-Appointed Experts on Factual Issues 1.03
      A. Looking back: Experts in early forms of arbitration 1.04
      B. The modern tribunal-appointed expert 1.05
      C. The expert consultant 1.11
      D. The document production master 1.14
      E. Result: Third-party support in establishing the facts of the case 1.15
   II. Tribunal-Appointed Experts on Legal Issues 1.16
       A. Looking back: The institutional legal consultant 1.17
       B. The ad hoc legal consultant 1.21
       C. The legal tribunal expert to the arbitre iuris 1.24
       D. Result: Third-party support in clarifying the law 1.29
   III. Tribunal Secretaries Appointed by the Arbitral Tribunal 1.30
       A. Looking back: Tribunal secretaries throughout the history of arbitration 1.31
       B. Developing consistent terminology 1.36
   IV. Tribunal Secretaries Appointed by Arbitral Institutions 1.42
       A. Distinction between tribunal secretaries and the institution's staff 1.43
       B. ICSID and PCA arbitrations 1.46
          1. Structural distinctiveness: ICSID and PCA as intergovernmental organizations 1.47
          2. Tribunal secretaries in ICSID and PCA arbitrations 1.49
             a. Tribunal secretaries in ICSID arbitrations 1.50
             b. Tribunal secretaries in PCA arbitrations 1.55
          3. Tribunal assistants in ICSID and PCA arbitrations 1.59
       C. Legal assistants at the Iran–US Claims Tribunal 1.62
       D. Ad hoc clerks at the Court of Arbitration for Sport 1.67
2. Tribunal Secretaries: Practical Need and Legal Admissibility

I. The Practical Need for Tribunal Secretaries

A. The users' perspective: Improving the efficiency of the arbitral process
   1. Duration
      a. Administrative aspects of the case
      b. Paper tsunamis
      c. Rendering the final award
   2. Costs
   3. Quality

B. The arbitrators perspective: Tribunal secretaries as assets

C. The systemic perspective: Tribunal secretaries as apprentices
   1. The arbitrator's apprentice
   2. The institution's apprentice
   3. Concerns

D. Limits to the need for tribunal secretaries
   1. Necessity in administered arbitration
   2. Necessity in disputes concerning highly confidential information
   3. Necessity in small- and medium-scale proceedings

II. The Legal Admissibility of Tribunal Secretaries

A. Express legal bases
   1. National arbitration legislation
   2. Arbitration rules
   3. Soft law instruments
      a. Non-binding character of soft law instruments
      b. Institutional guidelines providing for the appointment of tribunal secretaries

B. Implicit legal bases
   1. Reference to tribunal secretaries in arbitration legislation and rules
   2. Reference to tribunal secretaries in legislative history and materials
   3. Indirect references to tribunal secretaries
      a. Reference to 'the parties' right to be assisted'
      b. Reference to 'persons appointed by the arbitral tribunal'
      c. Reference to 'other assistance required by the arbitral tribunal'
      d. Reference to an 'employee or agent of the tribunal' <table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Contents</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>C. Analogy to the legal bases for judicial assistants in other fora</td>
<td>2.78</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>D. The tribunal's duty to conduct the proceedings efficiently</td>
<td>2.84</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>E. The tribunal's discretion to conduct the proceedings</td>
<td>2.88</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>F. Party autonomy</td>
<td>2.93</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>G. Result: General legal admissibility of tribunal secretaries</td>
<td>2.94</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>III. The Legal Status of Tribunal Secretaries</td>
<td>2.95</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>IV. Conclusion</td>
<td>2.98</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

3. Receptum Secretarii: Contractual Relationships

I. The Relevance of Pre-Existing Relationships 3.04
   A. Internal tribunal secretaries 3.05
   B. External tribunal secretaries 3.06

II. Parties to and Formation of the Tribunal Secretary's Contract 3.08
   A. Internal tribunal secretaries 3.09
   B. External tribunal secretaries 3.15
      1. Contractual partner(s) 3.16
         a. The parties 3.17
         b. The arbitral tribunal as a collegial organ 3.23
         c. The chairperson or appointing arbitrator 3.25
      2. Contract formation and termination 3.27

III. The Nature of the Tribunal Secretary's Contract 3.28
   A. Sui generis contract 3.30
   B. Contract for work 3.32
   C. Contract for the provision of services 3.34
   D. Agency contract and mandate 3.36

IV. Law Applicable to the Tribunal Secretary's Contract 3.38
   A. Characteristic performance 3.40
   B. Closer connection 3.42

V. Rights and Duties Arising from the Secretary’s Contract 3.44
   A. Rights 3.45
   B. Duties 3.47
      1. Duty to fulfil mandate 3.48
      2. Duty to remain impartial and independent 3.53
      3. Duty to keep the arbitration confidential 3.54
         a. Existence and origin of the duty to keep the arbitration confidential 3.55
         b. Scope of the duty to keep the arbitration confidential 3.58
         c. Practical issues regarding the duty of confidentiality 3.59

VI. Liabilities 3.63
   A. Tribunal secretary's liability vis-à-vis the parties 3.64
   B. Arbitrator's liability vis-à-vis the parties 3.68
   C. Tribunal secretary's liability vis-à-vis the arbitrator 3.71

VII. Conclusion 3.73
II. THE TRIBUNAL SECRETARY'S MANDATE

4. The Appointment Process

I. Candidates' Qualifications

A. Background of individuals usually appointed as tribunal secretary

B. Relevant qualification criteria

1. (Un)desirability of regulation on tribunal secretaries' qualifications

2. Minimum qualifications

a. Legal education

b. Prior experience in international arbitration

c. Basic IT skills

d. Soft skills

e. Availability

3. Maximum qualifications

4. Other potentially relevant qualification criteria

a. Trustful relationship with the appointing arbitrator

b. Specific language proficiency

c. Qualification in the applicable law

d. Specific technical knowledge

II. Impartiality and Independence

A. Tribunal secretaries' duty to impartiality and independence

B. Standard for the assessment of impartiality and independence

1. General rule: Same degree of impartiality and independence as arbitrators

2. Modifications to the general rule

a. Tribunal secretary's non-involvement in decision-making

b. Tribunal secretary's professional relationship with chairperson

c. Tribunal secretary's affiliation with administering institution

C. Disclosure obligation

1. Scope of obligation to disclose

2. Relevant actor to make disclosure

3. Form and timing of disclosure

4. The vetting of tribunal secretary candidates

D. Tribunal secretaries in second-tier arbitrations

1. Appellate arbitral tribunals

2. ICSID Annulment Committees

3. Non-participation of tribunal secretaries in the second tier

III. The Parties' Involvement in the Appointment Process

A. Relevance of consent and transparency in international arbitration

B. Parties' involvement not required

C. Only transparency required

D. All parties' consent required

E. Absence of an objection required

1. The parties' right to object

2. Practical difficulties in exercising the right to object
Contents

a. Early transparency regarding an arbitrator’s use of secretaries 4.87
b. Transparency regarding secretary’s tasks and remuneration 4.96

IV. Formal Appointment Process 4.98
A. Internal decision on secretary appointment 4.99
1. The co-arbitrators’ decision 4.100
2. The arbitral institution’s decision 4.103
B. Appointment proposal to the parties 4.105
C. Finalizing the appointment: ‘Tribunal Secretary Terms of Appointment’ 4.108
1. The secretary’s scope of tasks and remuneration 4.111
2. Reflection of the parties’ lack of objection 4.113
3. Reflection of the secretary’s acceptance 4.114
D. Result: A seven-step process for the formal appointment of tribunal secretaries 4.116

V. Informal Participation of ‘Undisclosed Secretaries’ 4.117
A. Collegial support within the arbitrator’s law firm, chambers, or organization 4.118
B. Undisclosed secretaries sensu stricto 4.123
C. Concerns about undisclosed secretaries 4.125
1. The arbitrator’s obligation of confidentiality 4.126
2. The secretary’s obligation of impartiality and independence 4.128

VI. Conclusion 4.129

5. Permissible Tasks

I. The Personal Nature of the Arbitrator’s Mandate 5.05
A. The mandate’s hybrid nature 5.06
B. Lack of codification and explicit agreements on the mandate’s personal nature 5.08
C. The parties’ choice of arbitrator 5.10
1. The intuitorum personae-nature of the choice 5.11
2. Reasons for arbitrator selection 5.15
3. Selection of ‘busy arbitrators’ 5.19
   a. Conscious choices 5.20
   b. Frustrated expectations 5.24
4. Legitimate expectations resulting from the intuitorum personae selection of arbitrators 5.28
D. Consequences for the personal nature of the arbitrator’s mandate 5.30
1. Consequences for the arbitrator’s juridical mandate 5.31
2. Consequences for the arbitrator’s contractual mandate 5.38
3. Ethical consequences 5.45
4. Conclusion 5.48

II. The Eminently Personal Parts of the Arbitrator’s Mandate 5.49
A. Duty to conduct the arbitral proceedings 5.50
1. Administrative duties 5.51
2. Procedural duties 5.54
B. Duty to render a decision on the parties’ dispute 5.62
1. Deduction: The analytical process of arbitral decision-making
   a. Reading and listening to the parties' submissions
   b. Establishing the facts of the case
   c. Identifying the contents and meaning of the applicable law(s)
   d. Applying the law to the facts, thus reaching a decision
   e. Recording this decision and its reasoning
   f. Summary: The core of arbitral decision-making

2. Intuition: Extra-legal aspects of arbitral decision-making

C. Result: List of eminently personal parts of the arbitral mandate

III. Framework for the Determination of Permissible Delegation and Support
   A. The impact of delegation and support
      1. Delegation to other members of the arbitral tribunal
      2. Delegation to and support by third parties
   B. The degrees of the parties' consent with regard to delegation and support
      1. Informed consent regarding specific duties
         a. The need for informed and specific consent
         b. Limits to party autonomy
            i. Limits in arbitration rules and guidelines
            ii. Limits in the lex arbitri
      2. 'Carte blanche' consent
      3. Absence of transparency and consent
   C. Traffic Light Scale of Permissible Tribunal Secretary Tasks
      1. Green List
      2. Orange List
      3. Red List

IV. The Secretary's Role in the Discharge of the Arbitrator's Mandate
   A. Role in the discharge of administrative duties
      1. General logistical support
         a. Organizing the oral hearing and other meetings
         b. Coordinating travel and lodging for the arbitral tribunal and other players
         c. Creating and maintaining a procedural calendar for the arbitration
         d. Coordinating external and providing specialized administrative support
      2. Communication
         a. With the parties
         b. With the arbitral institution
         c. With other players
         d. Within the arbitral tribunal
      3. Organizing and maintaining the case file
      4. Setting up cybersecurity and other technological assistance for the tribunal
      5. Financial management of the case
   B. Role in the discharge of procedural duties
      1. Case management
      2. Procedural decisions
         a. Making procedural decisions
b. Drafting procedural decisions 5.168

c. Communicating procedural decisions 5.172

d. Ensuring compliance with procedural decisions 5.175

C. Role in the discharge of duty to decide the case 5.176

1. Party submissions 5.177
   a. Written submissions 5.178
      i. Identifying crucial issues of the case 5.179
      ii. Summarizing the parties' written submissions 5.180
   b. Oral submissions 5.186
      i. Attendance at oral hearing as a 'fly on the wall' 5.187
      ii. Supporting the arbitral tribunal in oral hearing 5.189
      iii. Drawing up minutes of oral hearing 5.191
      iv. Active participation in oral hearing 5.193

2. Factual circumstances of the case 5.194
   a. Taking of evidence 5.195
      i. Examination of witnesses and experts 5.196
      ii. Site visits 5.199
      iii. Document production master 5.201
   b. Evaluation of evidence 5.203
      i. Summarizing evidence and the factual circumstances of the case 5.204
      ii. Research on factual issues inside the record 5.206
   c. 'Contribution' of evidence 5.212
      i. Research on factual issues outside the record 5.213
      ii. Advice on factual issues 5.214
      iii. Translation of documents and interpretation services 5.218

3. Applicable law(s) 5.219
   a. Research on legal issues 5.220
      i. Legal issues inside the record 5.221
      ii. Legal issues outside the record 5.224
   b. Advice on the applicable law(s) 5.229

4. Arbitral decision-making 5.232
   a. Preparation of supporting documents for deliberations 5.233
   b. Presence during deliberations 5.235
      i. Only attendance 5.236
      ii. Support to the arbitral tribunal 5.240
      iii. Active participation 5.242
   c. Advisory vote 5.246

5. Recording the decision 5.248
   a. Scrutiny function for the tribunal's draft award 5.249
   b. Drafting the 'formal and uncontroversial' parts of the award 5.251
   c. Drafting the substantive portions of the award 5.256

6. Issuance of the award 5.265
   a. Finalization of the draft arbitral award 5.266
   b. Tribunal secretary's appearance on the award 5.267
      i. (Co-)signing the award 5.268
      ii. Identification of tribunal secretary on and in the award 5.273
   c. Delivery or notification of the award to the parties 5.275

7. Post-award duties 5.276
   a. Additional and supplementary awards 5.277
b. Registration of the award with the competent court and archival duties 5.279

c. Preparing awards for publication 5.280

8. Facilitation of settlement between the parties 5.281

D. Other tasks 5.284

V. Conclusion 5.285

6. Remuneration

I. The Secretary’s Contractual Claim for Remuneration 6.03

II. Allocation of the Secretary’s Costs 6.05

A. Allocation of costs if the arbitral tribunal is remunerated on an hourly basis 6.06

1. Principle: The parties bear the secretary’s costs 6.07

2. Explanation: The secretary’s costs as costs of the arbitration 6.08

   a. The secretary’s costs as an independent cost item 6.09
   b. The secretary’s costs as a reasonable expense of the arbitral tribunal 6.13
      i. Secretary costs as an expense of the tribunal 6.14
      ii. Reasonableness of the expense 6.16
   c. Tribunal secretary to be paid from advance on costs 6.19

B. Allocation of costs if the tribunal is remunerated ad valorem 6.20

1. Principle: The tribunal bears the secretary’s costs 6.21

2. Explanation 6.22

   a. The secretary’s costs as ‘priced into’ the tribunal’s remuneration 6.23
   b. Allocation of costs within the arbitral tribunal 6.30

3. Exceptions 6.33

   a. The secretary’s reasonable expenses 6.34
   b. Party agreement to bear secretary’s costs 6.38

C. Allocation of costs independent of the arbitrator’s remuneration 6.44

1. The arbitral institution bears the secretary’s costs 6.45

2. The secretary bears her own costs 6.48

3. Dependence on the amount in dispute 6.51

D. Conclusion and a proposal 6.53

III. Determining the Appropriate Rate 6.54

A. Competent body to fix the appropriate rate 6.55

1. Unilateral decision by the tribunal 6.56

2. Agreement between the tribunal and the parties 6.57

3. Arbitral institution or another third party 6.59

B. Relevant factors in determining the appropriate rate 6.61

1. Lump sum or hourly rate? 6.62

2. Tasks carried out and secretary’s seniority 6.64

3. Comparison to arbitrator’s and institution’s remuneration 6.65

4. Rates charged in arbitral practice 6.68

C. State court actions to reduce the secretary’s fees 6.71

D. Formally fixing the relevant rate, effecting payment, and value added tax 6.76
III. THE IRREGULAR USE OF TRIBUNAL SECRETARIES

7. Challenge of Secretaries and Arbitrators

I. Challenge of Tribunal Secretaries

A. The parties' right to challenge secretaries
   1. Statutory bases for tribunal secretarial challenges
   2. Inherent right to challenge secretaries?
B. Grounds for the challenge of tribunal secretaries
   1. Justifiable doubts as to the secretary's impartiality and independence
      a. Secretary has interned, trained, or worked with a party's law firm
      b. Secretary has a pre-existing relationship with the dispute
   2. Secretary does not possess required qualifications
   3. Secretary has carried out impermissible tasks
C. Challenge procedure
D. Decision on the challenge
   1. State court
   2. Arbitral tribunal
   3. Arbitral institution
E. Legal effect of a challenge
   1. Consequences while challenge is pending
   2. Consequences of a successful challenge

II. Removal of Tribunal Secretaries

III. Challenge of Arbitrators

A. Tribunal has appointed secretary despite parties' contrary agreement
B. Secretary lacks impartiality or independence
   1. Attribution of secretary's bias to the tribunal
   2. 'Spillover' of secretary's bias to the tribunal
      a. Secretary's lack of independence
      b. Secretary's lack of impartiality
C. Tribunal employs secretary impermissibly
   1. Prejudgment due to over-reliance on secretary
   2. 'Failure to act' due to over-reliance on secretary

IV. Conclusion

8. The Fate of the Award

I. Nullity of the Award
II. Grounds for Annulment and Denial of Enforcement
   A. Tribunal secretary acted as de facto arbitrator
      1. Threshold for considering secretaries de facto arbitrators
I. Burden and Standard of Proof

II. Methods of Proof

A. Direct testimony
   1. The chairperson's testimony
   2. The co-arbitrators' testimony
   3. The secretary's testimony

B. Disclosure of documents relating to the use of secretary

C. Time sheets

D. Linguistic analysis of the award

E. Other methods of proof

III. Conclusion

9. The Proof Conundrum

10. Results and Outlook
Contents

APPENDICES

Appendix A: Formal Appointment Process for Tribunal Secretaries 401
Appendix B: Model Letter on the Proposed Appointment of a Tribunal Secretary 403
Appendix C: Tribunal Secretary Terms of Appointment 405
Appendix D: Tribunal Secretary’s Declaration of Impartiality and Independence 409
Appendix E: Traffic Light Scale of Permissible Tribunal Secretary Tasks 411
Appendix F: Table of Secretary Identities in ICSID Annulment Proceedings 415

Bibliography 421
Index 455