

Perpetrators of International Crimes

Theories, Methods, and Evidence

Edited by

ALETTE SMEULERS
MAARTJE WEERDESTIJN
BARBORA HOLÁ

OXFORD
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Table of Contents

Table of Cases	xvii
List of Abbreviations	xix
Note from the Editors	xxi
List of Contributors	xxiii

Introduction	1
Alette Smeulers, Barbora Holá, and Maartje Weerdesteijn
1. The Field: Perpetrator Studies	1
2. The Topic: Perpetrators of International Crimes	2
3. The Book: Theories, Methods, and Evidence	4

I. PERPETRATOR STUDIES

1. Historical Overview of Perpetrator Studies	11
Alette Smeulers
1. Introduction	11
2. Nuremberg and the Face of Evil: Mentally Disturbed Criminals or Ordinary Men?	12
3. The Autobiography of Hoess and the World through the Eyes of the Perpetrators	15
4. The Trial of Adolf Eichmann and Hannah Arendt's Banality of Evil Thesis	16
5. Psychological Experiments and the Social-Psychological Approach	18
6. The Browning-Goldhagen Debate: Situational or Dispositional	19
7. Biographies and Case Studies	21
8. Towards a Broader Perspective	22
8.1 Case studies	22
8.2 New disciplinary and methodological approaches	24
8.3 Terrorism research	26
9. Conclusion	27
2. Theories, Methods, and Evidence	29
Alette Smeulers, Barbora Holá, and Maartje Weerdesteijn
1. Introduction	29
2. Theories and Evidence: What Do We Assume and What Do We Know?	30
2.1 Individual level: perpetrator's personality, character traits, and disorders	31
2.2 Situational level: perpetrator in his immediate surroundings	34
2.3 Societal level: broader political, ideological, societal, and cultural context	42
2.4 Processes of violence: from radicalization to violence	43

3. Methods: How Do We Know What We Know?	46
3.1 Qualitative studies	47
3.2 Quantitative and mixed-method studies	48
3.3 Experiments	50
4. Reflecting on the Theories, Methods, and Evidence: How Much Do We Know?	51
 II. REFLECTING ON METHODS AND SOURCES
3. Perpetrators, Fieldwork, and Ethical Concerns	57
Chandra Lekha Sriram
1. Introduction	57
2. Field Research and Methodology	59
3. Field Research and Alleged or Potential Perpetrators	60
3.1 El Salvador 1997–1998	61
3.2 Sri Lanka 1999–2005/2006	62
3.3 Colombia 2005–2006	63
3.4 Sudan 2005–2006	64
3.5 Sierra Leone 2004–2014	65
4. Why Should We Worry?	66
5. Deficits for the Defence/Inequality of Arms	67
5.1 What happens to the acquitted?	68
5.2 ‘Double prosecutor’ effect of having victim participation/common legal representatives	68
5.3 Concerns about evidence, witnesses, and intermediaries: from Lubanga to Kenya	69
6. Fieldwork and Power-Relations	70
7. Manipulation or Narrative Promotion?	70
8. Concluding Thoughts	71
4. Interviewing Perpetrators against the Backdrop of Ethical Concerns and Reflexivity	72
Mina Rauschenbach
1. Introduction	72
2. Researching Presumed Perpetrators: The Significance of Ethics and Reflexivity	73
2.1 The significance of ethics and reflexivity in relation to identity management and power concerns	74
2.2 The research project	76
3. The Age of Accountability and the Social Construction of the Figure of the Perpetrator	77
4. Reflexivity and Ethical Concerns throughout the Research Process	79
4.1 The preparation stage	79
4.2 The interview process	80
4.3 Interview outcomes and outputs: analysis, interpretation, and dissemination	84
5. Conclusions	85

5. Studying ‘Perpetrators’ through the Lens of the Criminal Trial	89
Thijs B. Bouwknecht and Adina-Loredana Nistor
1. Introduction	89
2. Knowing the Unknowable	92
3. Observing the Invisible	95
4. Comparing the Incomparable	101
5. Ordinary Eichmanns?	104
5.1 Kaing Guek Eav (Duch)	104
5.2 Charles Taylor	106
5.3 Laurent Gbagbo	108
5.4 Studying perpetrators on trial	110
6. Conclusion	112

III. STUDYING PERPETRATION

6. Perpetration as a Process: A Historical-Sociological Model	117
Uğur Ümit Üngör
1. Introduction: Building a Dynamic Model	117
2. The Macro Context: Orchestrating	120
3. The Meso Context: Organizing	123
4. The Micro Context: Killing	128
5. Discussion	130
7. The Margins of Perpetration: Role-Shifting in Genocide	132
Kjell Anderson
1. Introduction: Individual Roles in Genocide	132
2. Roles in Genocide	133
2.1 Hilberg’s atrocity triangle	133
2.2 Beyond Hilberg: accounting for the complexity of perpetration	134
3. Perpetration and Victimization	137
3.1 Perpetration-victimization	137
3.2 Victimization-perpetration	138
4. Bystanding and Perpetration	140
4.1 Perpetration-bystanding	140
4.2 Bystanding-perpetration	142
5. Perpetration and Rescuing	142
5.1 Perpetration-rescuing	142
5.2 Rescuing-perpetration	143
6. Navigating Genocide	144
6.1 Constrained agency: the social role and immediate margin of discretion	144
6.2 Genocidal serendipity	146
6.3 The dynamics of role shifting	147
7. Roles and Identity After Genocide	149
8. Conclusion: Do Categories Matter?	151

8. Beyond Perpetrators: Complex Political Actors Surrounding the 1994 Genocide in Rwanda	153
Erin Jessee
1. Introduction	153
2. The Official History of 'the 1994 Genocide against the Tutsi'	154
3. Approaching Rwanda's Génocidaires	157
4. The Politics of Perpetration in Rwanda's Post-Genocide Period: Three Case Studies	159
4.1 A typical génocidaire ? Michel	160
4.2 A 'true monster': Devota	163
4.3 A Tutsi génocidaire ? Elliot's story	165
5. From Génocidaires to Complex Political Actors	167
6. Conclusion	171
 IV. STUDYING PERPETRATORS: CASE STUDIES
9. Studying Perpetrator Ideologies in Atrocity Crimes	175
Jonathan Leader Maynard
1. Introduction	175
2. Moving Beyond Existing Perspectives	177
3. A Neo-Ideological Approach	179
4. Illustration: Stalin's Great Terror	185
5. Conclusion	191
 10. Religion and International Crimes: The Case of the Islamic State	 192
Pieter Nanninga
1. Introduction	192
2. Religion and Violence	193
3. 'A Religious War'	195
4. Enslaving Yazidis: A Case of 'Religious Genocide?'	197
5. Attacking the West: A Case of 'Religious Terrorism?'	201
6. Conclusion	205
 11. The Female Tigers of Sri Lanka: The Legitimation of Recruitment and Fight	 208
Georg Frerks
1. Introduction	208
2. The Role of Women in War: Women as Fighters	209
3. The Sri Lankan Conflict	210
4. The Rise of Tamil Militancy and the LTTE	211
5. Female LTTE Fighters	215
5.1 Reasons to join the LTTE	215
5.2 Fighting with 'the boys'	218
5.3 Heroism and martyrdom	219
5.4 Victim versus agent? Feminist empowerment or nationalist subjugation?	221
6. Conclusion	222

12. The Rationality and Reign of Paul Kagame	224
Maartje Weerdesteijn
1. Introduction	224
2. Rwanda under Kagame's Rule	226
3. Dictatorial Rule and the Role of Rationality	227
4. The Life and Reign of Paul Kagame: A More Nuanced Perspective on Rationality	230
4.1 Early life	230
4.2 Fighting with the RPF	232
4.3 Ruling Rwanda	233
5. The Rationality and Reign of Paul Kagame	235
6. Conclusion	236
V. STUDYING PERPETRATORS ON TRIAL: CASE STUDIES
13. Nothing Must Remain: The (In)visibility of Atrocity Crimes and the Perpetrators' Strategies using the Corpses of their Victims	241
Caroline Fournet
1. Introduction	241
2. Displaying Cadavers, Instilling Fear, and Affirming Power over Life and Death: Perpetrators' Perverse Game of (In)visibility of Violence	243
3. Hiding Cadavers to Conceal the Crimes: An Attempt at Evading Justice by Hampering Investigations and Evidence-Gathering?	246
4. Disposing of Cadavers to Disguise the Crimes: An Attempt at Re-Writing History	249
5. The Treatment of Cadavers and Genocidal Intent: Annihilating Identities to Destroy the Group	250
5.1 Mutilating cadavers and robbing their graves to destroy the group	251
5.2 Destroying corpses to kill the dead	252
6. Conclusion	254
14. Plausible Deniability: The Challenges in Prosecuting Paramilitary Violence in the Former Yugoslavia	256
Iva Vukušić
1. Introduction	256
2. Paramilitaries and Plausible Deniability	259
3. Nature and Characteristics of Paramilitaries in the Former Yugoslavia	261
3.1 Ambiguity and control	263
3.2 Importance of borders for plausible deniability	264
3.3 Loyalty and autonomy	265
4. Criminal Prosecutions for Paramilitary Violence	266
5. Some Challenges to Prosecution of Paramilitary Violence	268
5.1 Types of evidence in prosecuting paramilitary violence	269
6. Conclusion	271

15. Perpetrators on Trial: Characteristics of War Crimes Perpetrators Tried by Courts in Bosnia and Herzegovina and ICTY	273
Mirza Buljubašić and Barbora Holá
1. Introduction	273
2. Conflict in Bosnia and Herzegovina, Perpetrators of International Crimes, and Criminal Justice	275
2.1 Criminal justice response after the conflict in Bosnia and Herzegovina	277
3. Methodology	278
4. Results	282
4.1 Socio-demographic characteristics	282
4.2 Crime-related characteristics	289
5. Conclusion	294
16. 'Like Mirrors of Morality': Social Support for Nazi War Criminals in Post-War Germany	296
Susanne Karstedt
1. Introduction: Support for Prisoners in Contemporary Criminal Justice	296
2. Framing Solidarity and Social Support for Perpetrators of Mass Atrocities	299
2.1 Conceptualizing solidarity and support	299
2.2 Contextualizing social support for perpetrators in transitional and post-conflict societies	300
3. Supporting Nazi War Criminals in Post-War Germany	302
3.1 Setting the scene	302
3.2 Networks of support	304
3.3 Organizing support: associations, charities, and the churches	306
4. Celebrity, Lifelines, Organizations: Case Studies of Support	308
4.1 A fund for Albert Speer	309
4.2 Lifelines and lies: evading justice	309
4.3 Association for Mutual Aid (HIAG): strategizing for comrades in arms	311
5. Conclusion: From the Past to the Present	313
Concluding Thoughts	315
Alette Smeulers
Bibliography	323
Index	367