International Law in the Long Nineteenth Century (1776–1914)

From the Public Law of Europe to Global International Law?

Edited by

Inge Van Hulle
Randall Lesaffer

BRILL
NIJHOFF
LEIDEN | BOSTON
Contents

Introduction vii
Randall Lesaffer and Inge Van Hulle

PART 1
International Law and Revolution

1 Napoleon 1814–1815: A Small Issue of Status 3
James Crawford

2 The Law of Nations and the Common law Of Europe: The Case of Edmund Burke 20
Camilla Boisen

3 Uneasy Neutrality: Britain and the Greek War of Independence (1821–1832) 45
Viktorija Jakjimovska

PART 2
International Law and Empire

4 Equality of Non-European Nations in International Law 75
Andrew Fitzmaurice

5 British Humanitarianism, International Law and Human Sacrifice in West Africa 105
Inge Van Hulle

6 The Mahmoud Ben Ayad Case and the Transformation of International Law 126
Raphaël Cahen

7 Public-Private Colonialism: Extraterritoriality in the Shanghai International Settlement 140
Stefan Kroll
PART 3

The Rise of Modern International Law

8 Permanent Neutrality or Permanent Insecurity? Obligation and Self-Interest in the Defence of Belgian Neutrality, 1830–1870 159
   Frederik Dhondt

9 The Role of Comparative Law in the Development of Modern Private International Law (1750–1914) 186
   Ana Delic

10 The Institute of International Law’s Crisis in the Wake of the Franco-Prussian War (1873–1899) 214
    Vincent Genin