

Controversial Issues in Criminology

Edited by

John R. Fuller

State University of West Georgia

Eric W. Hickey

California State University, Fresno

Series Editor

Steven A. Egger

University of Illinois at Springfield

ALLYN AND BACON

Boston • London • Toronto • Sydney • Tokyo • Singapore

Contents

About the Editors vii

Preface ix

Controversial Crimes

1. Should Prostitution Be Legalized? 1
 YES: Robert P. McNamara 1
 NO: Jacqueline Boles 9
2. Are Stalking Laws Effective? 18
 YES: Ronnie Harmon 18
 NO: N. Jane McCandless 26
3. Multicide: Does Society Need the "Supersizing" of Murder? 35
 YES: Patricia Kirby 35
 NO: Toni DuPont-Morales 42
4. Should Official (Government) Statistics Be the Primary Source for Research on American Terrorism? 51
 YES: Brent L. Smith 51
 NO: Mark Hamm 60
5. Does Law Enforcement Need More Power to Fight the Techno-War against Computer and Credit Card Criminals? 69
 YES: Jerome E. Jackson 69
 NO: Robert P. McNamara 83

Controversial Perspectives

6. Have Community “Corrections” Become Community Control? 91
YES: Georgia Smith 91
NO: Karol Lucken 100
7. From a Peacemaking Perspective, Is Individual Change More Important than Social Change? 110
YES: Michael Braswell and Wayne Gillespie 110
NO: M. Joan McDermott 119
8. Is Left Realism a Useful Theory for Addressing the Problems of Crime? 128
YES: Martin D. Schwartz and Walter S. DeKeseredy 129
NO: Stuart Henry 137
9. Can Students Benefit from an Intensive Engagement with Postmodern Criminology? 149
YES: Bruce A. Arrigo 149
NO: David O. Friedrichs 159
10. Are Restorative Justice Processes Too Lenient toward Offenders? 167
YES: Arthur V. N. Wint 168
NO: Duane Ruth-Heffelbower 176

Controversial Policies

11. Is the “Broken Windows” Theory an Effective Way to Reduce Crime? 186
YES: Craig Fraser 186
NO: William Norton 193
12. Should the Juvenile Justice System Get Tougher on Juvenile Offenders? 199
YES: Sandra Stone 199
NO: Robert M. Regoli 207
13. Chemical Corrections: Is Medical Treatment a Useful Way to Deal with Criminal Offenders? 217
YES: Diana Fishbein 217
NO: Joyce Carbonell 230
14. Is the “Three Strikes and You’re Out” a Useful Sentencing Policy? 240
YES: Mike Reynolds 240
NO: John Kramer 248