

THE WILD EAST

CRIME AND LAWLESSNESS IN POST-COMMUNIST
RUSSIA

Victor M. Sergeyeu

M.E. Sharpe

Armonk, New York
London, England

Contents

Foreword by Åke E. Andersson	vii
Preface	ix
Introduction	xiii

PART I. MORAL PRACTICES AND THE LAW: FORMAL AND INFORMAL INSTITUTIONS IN A SOCIETY IN TRANSITION

Chapter 1. Law and Order: Political Interpretations

1. Right, Left, and Liberal	3
2. The Meaning of Law	9

Chapter 2. Law, Crime, and Man in European Culture: Theoretical Considerations

1. Social Arguments	19
2. Rationality and New Psychology	30
3. Ethology and Deviant Behavior	36

Chapter 3. Collective Behavior in "Gray Zones"

1. Cooperation in "Gray Zones"	41
2. "Prisoner's Dilemma"	44
3. Organizations versus Movements	50

Chapter 4. Three Colors of Revolution
1. Social Institutions and Moral Practices	55
2. "Pink" Revolution	57
3. "White" Revolution	63
4. "Black" Revolution	67

PART II. NEW SOCIAL PHENOMENA AND CRIME IN POST-COMMUNIST RUSSIA

Chapter 5. Social Change, Legislation and Crime in the USSR and Russia
1. Economic Policy and Crime in the Period of Perestroika	73
2. "Gray Zones" Within the Legal Process	79
3. The Formation of Public Discourse on Crime in Present-Day Russia	92
Chapter 6. Criminal Communities in Russia
1. Territorial Criminal Groups	101
2. "Ethnic" Criminal Communities	108
3. The Problem of Corruption	111
Chapter 7. "Gray Zone" in the Economy
1. Banking and "Gray-Zone" Problems	121
2. Financial Companies	134
3. Privatization	141
Chapter 8. The "New Russians," the State, and Civil Society	153
Conclusion: The "Wild East"	165
Notes	169
Index	183