

Crime and the Internet

Edited by David S. Wall

London and New York

Contents

Notes on contributors	vii
Preface	xi
1 Cybercrimes and the Internet	1
DAVID WALL
2 Crime futures and foresight: challenging criminal behaviour in the information age	18
KEN PEASE
3 Telecommunication fraud in the digital age: the convergence of technologies	29
PETER GRABOSKY AND RUSSELL SMITH
4 “Between the risk and the reality falls the shadow”: evidence and urban legends in computer fraud	44
MICHAEL LEVI
5 Hacktivism: in search of lost ethics?	59
PAUL TAYLOR
6 Last of the rainmacs? Thinking about pornography in cyberspace	74
BELA BONITA CHATTERJEE
7 Criminalizing online speech to “protect” the young: what are the benefits and costs?	100
MARJORIE HEINS

8	Controlling illegal and harmful content on the Internet	113
	YAMAN AKDENIZ
9	Cyberstalking: tackling harassment on the Internet	141
	LOUISE ELLISON
10	The language of cybercrime	152
	MATTHEW WILLIAMS
11	Maintaining order and law on the Internet	167
	DAVID WALL
12	Policing “hi-tech” crime within the global context: the role of transnational policy networks	184
	PAUL NORMAN
13	The criminal courts online	195
	CLIVE WALKER
	Index	215