

Home Office Research Study 212

Drug Treatment and Testing Orders: Final evaluation report

Paul J. Turnbull, Tim McSweeney, Russell Webster,
Mark Edmunds and Mike Hough
Criminal Policy Research Unit, South Bank University

	Page
Foreword	i
Acknowledgements	ii
Summary	v
Throughputs	v
Testing	vi
Enforcement	vi
Reviews	vii
Impact on offenders	vii
Implications	viii
1. Introduction	1
Drug Treatment and Testing Orders	1
Previous experience of coerced treatment	3
The experience in the United States	3
The UK experience	6
Our approach to evaluating DTTOs	7
The structure of this report	8
2. The pilot and comparison schemes	9
The Croydon Pilot Programme	9
The Gloucestershire Pilot Programme	13
The Liverpool Pilot Programme	15
The comparison sites	17
3. Choosing Offenders For DTTOs	21
The pool of potential candidates for DTTOs	21
Referral, assessment and selection	23
Criteria for acceptance	29
Details of orders made	31
Profile of those given DTTOs	32
Stock-taking	32

4.	Testing, Reviews And Enforcement	35
	Testing	35
	Enforcement	41
	Court Reviews	47
	Stock-taking	51
5.	Inter-agency working	53
	Comparison sites	55
	Stocktaking	56
6.	The views of DTTO offenders	59
	Initial experience	59
	Views of offenders at completion or revocation of order	62
	Completers and those near to completion	63
	Revocations	63
7.	Changes in drug use and offending	65
	At Intake	65
	Changes in the middle term	71
	Changes in drug spend	73
	Exit interviews	74
	Stock-taking	76
8.	Summary and implications	79
	Throughputs	79
	Testing	79
	Enforcement	80
	Reviews	80
	Impact on offenders	81
	Implications	82
	Monitoring and evaluation	87
	Concluding thoughts	87
	Appendix A: Details of research methodology	89
	Appendix B: Urine test data	91
	References	99