Multilevel Constitutionalism for Multilevel Governance of Public Goods

Methodology Problems in International Law

Ernst Ulrich Petersmann
Contents

Preface ........................................................................................................................................... xv
Abbreviations .............................................................................................................................. xvii

Introduction: From Democratic and Republican to Cosmopolitan Constitutionalism in Multilevel Governance of Public Goods .............. 1
  I. Overview .................................................................................................................................. 1
      A. Legal Methodology Problems in the Transition from Democratic and Republican to More Cosmopolitan Constitutionalism .............................................................. 3
      B. From ‘International Law Among States’ to Vertical ‘Integration Law’ for Multilevel Governance of Transnational Public Goods ......................................................... 6
      C. ‘Multilevel Constitutionalism’ as a Functionally Differentiated, ‘Interactional’ Process of ‘Constitutionalization’ ................................................................. 9
      D. Need for Normative and Empirical Review of Legal Methodologies .............................. 13
      E. Empirical Case Studies and Policy Conclusions ................................................................. 17
  II. Does Multilevel Governance Require Multilevel Constitutionalism? ................................ 19
      A. From ‘National Governments’ to Multilevel Governance of Global Public Goods ......... 22
      B. Constitutional Principles of Conferral, Subsidiarity, Proportionality and Justice .......... 24
      C. From National to Multilevel Constitutional Restraints of Governance .......................... 28
      D. Normative and Empirical Hypotheses and Five Policy Propositions of this Study .......... 30
      A. How to Justify Law and Governance vis-à-vis Citizens? .............................................. 38
      B. Value Pluralism Underlying Democratic and Republican Constitutionalism ............. 40
      C. Need for Embedding Constitutional Democracies into Multilevel Republican and Cosmopolitan Constitutionalism .......................................................... 42
IV. Constitutional Failures of 'Disconnected' UN, WTO and EU Governance ........................................... 46
   A. Why 'Cosmopolitan Foreign Policies' are No Longer Unrealistic Utopias ........................................... 47
V. Legal Methodology: Need for Embedding Constitutional Democracies into Multilevel Republican and Cosmopolitan Constitutionalism ............................................. 59
   A. Lessons from European Integration Law for Multilevel Governance of Global Public Goods? ....................... 64
   B. From 'Economic Citizenship' and State Citizenship to 'Cosmopolitan Citizenship' in Multilevel Governance of Public Goods? ............................................ 68
   C. 'Methodological Pluralism' and the Need for 'Constitutional Coherence' of Public Goods Regimes ............................................. 71

   I. Introduction ......................................................................................................................... 76
      A. How to Clarify the 'Constitutional Principles' Underlying UN Law? ........................................... 78
      B. 'Human Rights Constitutionalism' Requires 'Constitutional Mind-Sets' ........................................... 81
      C. Civil Society Struggles for Justice and Human Rights ......................................................... 83
      D. The Impact of the 'Human Rights Revolution' on Legal Methodology Remains Neglected in International Law ......................................................... 84
   II. The Customary Law Requirement of Treaty Interpretation and Adjudication in Conformity with 'Principles of Justice' ................................................................. 87
      A. Formal and Procedural Principles of Justice in (Inter)National Legal Systems ................................. 89
         i. Justice as Justification of 'Equal Treatment' .............................................................................. 90
         ii. Rawlsian Justice as Fairness .................................................................................................. 91
         iii. Justice as Deliberative Democracy ......................................................................................... 92
         iv. Judicial Administration of Justice .......................................................................................... 93
         v. 'Constitutional Justice' as Multilevel Constitutional Protection of Public Goods ....................... 94
      B. 'Westphalian Justice' as International Order Protected by State Power ........................................... 95
      C. 'Democratic Justice' Based on Parliamentary Approval of UN and GATT/WTO Agreements .......... 97
D. ‘Constitutional Justice’ as Multilevel Constitutional Protection of Equal Constitutional Rights in UN Law and European Law ................................................. 99
E. ‘Commutative Justice’ in WTO Law ........................................... 102
F. ‘Cosmopolitan Justice’ in Commercial, Trade and Investment Law ................................................. 104
G. Principles of Equity ........................................................................ 106
H. Need for Institutionalizing ‘Republican Virtues’ and ‘Public Reason’ ................................................. 108

III. Legal Fragmentation and Reintegration as Dialectic Methods for Reconciling ‘Principles of Justice’ and Developing International Law ................................................. 111
A. ‘Legal Pluralism’ and ‘Legal Perspectivism’ ........................................... 113
B. ‘Legal Fragmentation’ as a Method for Transforming State-Centered into Person-Centered Legal Regimes ........................................................................ 115
C. ‘Proportionality Balancing’ as a Judicial Method Required by the ‘Integration Principle’ ......................... 119
   i. ICJ Jurisprudence ........................................................................ 119
   ii. Investment Arbitration ................................................................. 120
   iii. WTO Jurisprudence .................................................................... 122
   iv. Regional Economic Courts .......................................................... 122

IV. Global Democracy? Human Rights Require ‘Connecting Constituent and Constituted Powers’ through ‘Cosmopolitan Constitutionalism’ ................................................. 124
A. ‘Multilevel Human Rights Constitutions’ as an Example for ‘Six-Stage Constitutionalism’ ................................................. 126
B. Need for Interpreting the ‘Rules of Recognition’ of UN/WTO Law in Conformity with ‘Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms for All’ ................................................. 128
   i. From Discretionary ‘Diplomatic Protection’ to Judicial Protection of Cosmopolitan Rights ................................................. 129
   ii. Judicial Rule Clarification Can Limit the ‘State Bias’ of Intergovernmentalism ................................................. 130
C. Human Rights Require Transforming Cosmopolitan Principles into ‘Republican’ and ‘Cosmopolitan’ Constitutionalism ................................................. 133
   i. ‘Socializing States’ by Strengthening Domestic Protection of Human Rights ................................................. 134
   ii. Transforming Antagonistic Rivalry into Mutually Beneficial Cooperation Through Trade Law ................................................. 135
   iii. Extending Republican and Cosmopolitan Constitutionalism to Multilevel Governance ................................................. 136
D. ‘Constitutionalization’ of Multilevel Governance as a Struggle for Additional Rights of ‘Constituent Powers’ vis-à-vis ‘Constituted Powers’ ........................................... 139
   i. Constitutional Pluralism .................................................. 140
   ii. Citizens and Democratic Peoples as ‘Constituent Powers’ .................................................. 142
   iii. Global Democracy? Lack of Participatory and Deliberative Democracy in Multilevel Governance Institutions .................................................. 143
   iv. Cosmopolitan Constitutionalism as Never-Ending ‘Struggle for Justice’ ........................................... 145

V. Constitutionalizing UN/WTO Governance through Judicial Protection of Cosmopolitan Rights? Failures of the EU’s ‘Cosmopolitan Foreign Policy Constitution’ .......... 147
   A. Human Rights Law and ‘Access to Justice’ Justify Additional Cosmopolitan Rights ........................................... 149
   B. The EU’s Multilevel Economic Constitutionalism ........................................... 151
   C. Political Opposition to the EU’s Cosmopolitan ‘Foreign Policy Constitution’ ........................................... 154
      i. Three Complementary Levels of the EU’s ‘Republican’ and ‘Cosmopolitan’ Foreign Policy Constitution ........................................... 155
      ii. Political Opposition to ‘Constitutionalizing’ EU Foreign Policies ........................................... 157
      iii. Text, Context and Objectives of EU External Relations Law are Committed to ‘Strict Observance of International Law’ ........................................... 159
      iv. EU Law Requires Multilevel Rule of Law Protecting Rights of Citizens ........................................... 162
      v. ‘Hobbesian Interpretations’ of EU Foreign Policy Powers are Inconsistent with EU Law .......... 164
   D. Functional ‘Multilevel Constitutionalism’ Requires Multilevel Judicial Protection of Transnational Rule of Law for the Benefit of Citizens ........................................... 165
      i. The Need for Clarifying the ‘Emancipatory’ and ‘Republican Functions’ of Cosmopolitan Rights ........................................... 167
      iii. Human Rights Law Requires ‘Constitutionalizing Disconnected Multilevel Governance’ .............. 171
VI. Conclusion: Multilevel Governance Must Promote the ‘Six-Stage Sequence’ of Democratic, Republican and Cosmopolitan Constitutionalism ........................................ 174
   A. ‘Constitutional Contract Justifications’ of International Law? .................................................. 177
      i. The Emergence of ‘Cosmopolitan Constitutions’ with Cosmopolitan Citizenship Rights ............. 178
   B. ‘Constitutional Treaty Interpretations’ Can Justify Cosmopolitan Rights .................................. 181
   C. Methodological Challenges of ‘Multilevel Constitutionalism’ ................................................... 183
   D. Multilevel Constitutionalism Must Target the Collective Action Problems of Multilevel Governance of Public Goods ......................................................... 184

2. Constituting, Limiting, Regulating and Justifying Multilevel Governance through Multilevel ‘Republican Constitutionalism’ ............................................. 189
   I. The Gap Between Theory and Practice in Multilevel Governance of Global Public Goods ............ 190
      A. Why are Transnational ‘Aggregate Public Goods’ Undersupplied? ........................................ 191
      B. Utilitarian Economic and State-Centered Political Public Goods Theories ............................... 192
      C. Insufficient Legal Research on Transnational Public Goods Regimes ................................... 197
   II. ‘Collective Action Problems’ and Comparative Institutional Analyses: Examples from Multilevel Economic and Environmental Governance ......................... 201
      A. Non-Transparent Interest Group Politics Rather Than Democratic Governance of Public Goods .... 203
      B. Focus on National Interests Rather Than on Transnational Public Goods .............................. 206
      C. Multilevel ‘Constitutional Gaps’ and ‘Jurisdiction Gaps’ Without ‘Constitutional Justice’ ............ 209
      F. Regulatory Competition Promoting ‘Bottom-Up Aggregation’ of Public Goods .......................... 215
G. Need for Comparative Legal and Institutional Analyses of Public Goods Regimes ........................................ 216

H. Comparative Lessons from Case Studies and ‘Piecemeal Reforms’ .............................................................. 219
   i. Lessons from Europe for Improving Global Governance Institutions? The Example of the G20 .................. 219
   ii. Lessons from Europe for Improving UN Governance Regimes? The Example of Environmental Law .................. 221
      a. Climate Change Prevention Requires Multilevel ‘Integration Law’ ....................................................... 221
      b. Multilevel Protection of Biodiversity ........................................................................................................ 224
   iii. How to Improve Multilevel Governance of Global Public Goods Outside the UN System: The Example of the WTO ......................................................... 225

I. Responsibility of ‘Epistemic Communities’ for Reconciling Competing ‘Regulatory Paradigms’ and ‘Diffusion of Authority’ .................................................................................. 230

   A. Can Health and Economic Governance in Fragmented Legal Regimes be Reconciled with Human Rights Through Multilevel Tobacco Control Litigation? ...................................................... 235
      i. Multilevel Health Governance in the WHO ......................................................................................... 237
      ii. Worldwide Recognition of Rights to Health Protection ............................................................................ 239
      iii. Worldwide Recognition of WHO Health Regulations ............................................................................ 240
   B. Administration of Justice in National Tobacco Control Disputes? ............................................................. 241
      i. Tobacco Litigation in India, China and the USA ................................................................................. 241
      ii. Tobacco Litigation in Australia and other Commonwealth Countries ................................................. 243
      iii. Tobacco Litigation in Latin American Countries ............................................................................. 245
      iv. Tobacco Control Litigation in Europe .............................................................................................. 246
   C. Administration of Justice in WTO Tobacco Disputes? ............................................................................ 248
i. The Complaints against Australia’s Legislation on Plain Packaging of Tobacco Products .................................................. 248

ii. ‘Balancing Methods’ used in WTO Tobacco Control Disputes ................................................................. 253

D. Administration of Justice in Investor-State Tobacco Disputes? ............................................................... 256

E. Conclusion: Multilevel ‘Integration Law’ and Judicial Comity Can Promote Multilevel Legal Coherence of Human Rights Law, Health Law and International Economic Law ................................................................. 259

i. The Framework Convention on Tobacco Control as a Rights-Based Model of ‘Integration Law’ Clarifying ‘Law as Integrity’ ....... 261

ii. The Framework Convention on Tobacco Control as an Example of ‘Constitutionalization’ of International Economic Law? ................................................................. 262

iii. The Need for Clarifying the ‘Constitutional Functions’ of Courts of Justice.................................................... 264

iv. Judicial Clarification of General Principles of Law and Cosmopolitan Rights .................................................... 265

v. Need for Multilevel Judicial Protection of ‘Cosmopolitan Constitutionalism’ .................................................... 267

IV. How to ‘Constitutionalize’ Multilevel Trade Governance beyond the EU and EEA? Failures of Transatlantic Free Trade Agreements ................................................................. 270

A. How to Evaluate the EU’s Participation in Multilevel Governance of Public Goods? Republican, Democratic and Cosmopolitan Constitutionalism ................................................................. 273

B. ‘Cosmopolitan Constitutionalism’ in Legal and Judicial EU Cooperation with the EFTA States ................................................................. 277

i. Judicial Deference and ‘Contrapunctual Integration Law’ in the EEA ................................................................. 279

C. ‘Transformative’ Transatlantic Free Trade Agreements without Rights and Remedies of Citizens? ................................................................. 281

i. Constitutional Nationalism and its Limits in the EU’s Free Trade Agreements ................................................................. 284

ii. Need for Protecting Democratic, Republican and Cosmopolitan EU Citizenship Rights ................................................................. 287

iii. Why the CETA and the TTIP Risk Undermining Rights of Citizens in Transatlantic Relations ................................................................. 289
D. Transparent, Democratic Governance of Transatlantic Market Regulations?
   i. EU Citizen Rights to Transparent, Democratic Self-Governance.......................... 292
   ii. The EU Commission’s ‘Transparency Initiative’ and ‘Cosmopolitan Public Reason’ ... 295
   iii. Democratic Legitimacy of Free Trade Agreement Negotiations, Ratification and Implementation? .......................................................... 297
       a. Negotiations ................................................. 297
       b. Ratification .............................................. 298
       c. Implementation ......................................... 299

E. Investor-State Arbitration Rather Than General Rights of Citizens to Effective Remedies? 299
   i. Investor-State Dispute Settlement Risks Undermining Constitutional ‘Rule of Law’ .... 300

F. Disfranchisement of Citizens Enhances the Risks of Regulatory Cooperation .......... 304

V. Conclusion: Courts of Justice Must Promote Legal Consistency in Multilevel Dispute Settlement in Conformity with Cosmopolitan Rights ............................... 307
   A. Beyond Liberalism and Communitarianism: the Human Right to Justification ........ 309
   B. Unjust Treatment of EU Citizens as Mere Legal Objects .................................. 313
   C. ‘Access to Justice’ Requires Multilevel Dispute Settlement in the EU’s External Relations Law .............................................................. 315
   D. Constitutional EU Safeguards of Individual Freedoms do not Depend on Reciprocity ........ 317

3. Civilizing and Constitutionalizing ‘Disconnected’ UN, WTO and EU Governance Require ‘Cosmopolitan Constitutionalism’: Legal Methodology Challenges ......................... 321
   I. From ‘Constitutionalism 1.0’ to ‘Constitutionalism 4.0’ ................................. 321
   II. Four ‘Constitutional Functions’ of Cosmopolitan Rights and the Emergence of ‘Cosmopolitan International Law’....................................... 326
       A. ‘Empowering Functions’ of Cosmopolitan ‘Citizenship Rights’ ....................... 326
       B. ‘Limiting’ and ‘Enforcement Functions’ of Cosmopolitan Rights .................... 329
       C. ‘Regulatory’ and ‘Integrating Functions’ of Cosmopolitan Rights ................. 332
       D. ‘Justificatory Functions’ of Cosmopolitan Rights ..................................... 334
Contents xiii

E. Lessons from 'Comparative Institutionalism' for 'Republican Constructivism' .............................................. 335

III. Need for Integrating the Competing Conceptions of International Economic Law: From Fragmentation to Convergence in International Law ......................................................... 338
   A. International Economic Law as 'Public International Law Regulating the Economy'? ...................................... 341
   B. International Economic Law as 'Global Administrative Law'? ................................................................. 343
   C. International Economic Law as 'Multilevel Economic Regulation' Embedded into 'Constitutional Nationalism'? ................................................................. 346
   D. International Economic Law as 'Conflicts Law' and Private International Transactions Law? ........................ 348
   E. Multilevel Constitutional Conceptions of International Economic Law? .................................................... 350
   F. Justifying International Economic Law by 'Principles of Justice' May Vary Depending on the Actors, Institutions, Legal Contexts and Regulatory Objectives ................................................... 353
   G. 'Constitutional' and 'Cosmopolitan Justice' Require Limiting 'Disconnected, Multilevel Governance' ................................................................. 357

IV. Successful 'Constitutionalization' of 'Disconnected Diplomatic Governance' through Reforms of International Investment Law? ......................................................... 358

   A. Cosmopolitan Constitutionalism Complements Democratic Constitutionalism ............................................. 363
   B. Cosmopolitan Rights Justify 'Constitutional Functions' of Courts of Justice .................................................. 364

VI. Conclusion: Lessons from Democratic, Republican and Cosmopolitan Constitutionalism ................................. 367
   A. Lessons from Democratic Constitutionalism ................................................................. 368
   B. Lessons from Republican Constitutionalism ................................................................. 369
   C. Lessons from Cosmopolitan Constitutionalism ................................................................. 370

Index .................................................................................................................................................. 373