

The Standing of Victims in the Procedural Design of the International Criminal Court

By

Tatiana Bachvarova

BRILL
NIJHOFF

LEIDEN | BOSTON

Contents

Foreword XI

William Schabas

Foreword XV

Georghios M. Pikis

Acknowledgements XVI

Table of Cases / Jurisprudence XVII

Introduction 1

- 1 Victims' Eligibility under Rule 85 10
 - The Victim Definition and the Presumption of Innocence 11
 - Application of Rule 85 14
 - The First Criterion: Natural Persons 17
 - Identification Requirements* 18
 - Deceased Persons* 23
 - Disappeared Persons* 38
 - The First Criterion: Legal Persons 40
 - The Second Criterion: Harm 51
 - Definition of Harm* 52
 - Types of Harm* 53
 - Harm Sustained by Legal Persons* 61
 - The Third Criterion: Jurisdiction 62
 - The Fourth Criterion: Causal Link 63

- 2 Classification of Victims' Rights 68
 - General and Specific Rights 72
 - Rights of Uniform Applicability and Case-Dependent Rights 76
 - Express and Implied Rights 77
 - Imperative and Non-Imperative Rights 83
 - Conditional and Non-Conditional Rights 85
 - Passive and Active Rights; Rights of a Mixed Character 87
 - Positive and Negative Rights 90
 - Rights Employed in Person; Rights Exercised in Person and through Another; Rights Effectuated Exclusively through Another 91
 - Any-Victim Rights and Group-Specific Rights 99
 - Service Rights and Procedural Rights 103
 - Exclusive and Non-Exclusive Rights 105
 - Rights Falling within Several Classifications 106

3 Purpose and Quintessence of Article 68(3)	108
Article 68(3) Participation Scheme and Existing Models of Victims' Intervention	108
ICC's Participatory Scheme and Intervention of Interested Persons in Ongoing Litigation	115
Genesis and Overall Rationale of Article 68(3)	116
'Personal Interests' Requirement	121
Personal Interests of Victims Warranting Access to the Proceedings at Hand	123
Personal Interests of Victims Warranting Intervention Subsequent to Their Admission as Participants	125
The Requirement 'Are Affected'	127
The 'Appropriateness' Criterion	131
Appropriate Stages of the Proceedings	132
Appropriateness of the Intervention	136
Manner of Participation	136
Uniform Predetermination of Modalities of Participation	137
Contextual ('Casuistic') Determination of Modalities of Participation	140
Views and Concerns	141
Presentation of Views and Concerns	142
Non-Evidentiary Character of Views and Concerns	144
4 Duality of Victim-Witness Status	146
Duality of Status at the Domestic Level	148
Duality of Status at the International Level	150
Duality of Status in the Context of Trials of Mass Atrocities	156
Acquiring Duality of Status	160
Applications for Participation and Written Statements; Disclosure-Related Issues	162
Access to Victims' Applications for Participation; Disclosure of Applications of Dual Status Individuals	165
Views and Concerns as Compared to Testimony	169
Admissibility and Probative Value of the Testimony of Dual Status Individuals	173
Impact of Information from Dual Status Individuals on Their Victim Standing and Trustworthiness	183
Withdrawal of Victim Standing. Overview. Consequences and Possible Remedies	187
Practical Matters Occasioned by the Participation of Dual Status

Individuals	189
Role of the Registry in the Protection of Dual Status Individuals	191
Exchange of Information Concerning Dual Status Individuals	193
Contact between Dual Status Individuals, the Parties and Other Participants	196
5 ICC's Evidentiary Procedure and Victims' Role Therein	199
The Role of the Parties in the Processing of Evidence on the Merits of the Criminal Case	201
The Role of the Chamber in the Fact-Finding Mechanism	205
Victims' Role in the Fact-Finding Process on the Merits of the Criminal Case	212
The Essence of Reparation Proceedings in a Nutshell and Victims' Role in Related Evidence Gathering	226
Concluding Remarks	232
Bibliography	237
Index	245