The Decision Point

Six Cases in U.S. Foreign Policy Decision Making

DAVID PATRICK HOUGHTON
University of Central Florida

New York Oxford
OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS
PART 1 THEORIES 1

Chapter 1 Introduction 3
  The Traditions of Foreign Policy Decision-Making 4
    Homo Economicus or the Rational Actor Model (RAM) 7
  Three Alternatives to Homo Economicus 8
    Homo Bureaucraticus 9
    Homo Sociologicus 10
    Homo Psychologicus 13
  Levels of Analysis 15
  Outline of The Book 18

Chapter 2 Homo Bureaucraticus 23
  The Opening to China 1972 23
  The Hainan Island Incident of 2001 26
  The Assumptions of Homo Bureaucraticus 29
    “Where You Stand Depends On Where You Sit” 35
  Organizational Culture: “The Way Things Are Done Around Here” 38

Chapter 3 Homo Sociologicus 43
  Explaining the Iran-Contra Fiasco 49
  The Assumptions of Homo Sociologicus 55
    From Homo Sociologicus to Homo Psychologicus 61
Chapter 4 Homo Psychologicus 62
The Mayaguez Raid: Why the Rush? 64
“Bears To Honey”: The Irresistible Pull of Analogue Reasoning 68
The Assumptions of Homo Psychologicus 71
From Theories to Case Studies 84

PART 2 CASE STUDIES 85

Chapter 5 The Bay of Pigs: “How Could I Have Been So Stupid?” 87
A Thorn or a Dagger? 91
Homo Bureaucraticus 96
Homo Sociologicus 102
Homo Psychologicus 108
Assessing the Three Approaches: Some Points to Consider 113
Conclusions 115

Chapter 6 To the Brink: The Cuban Missile Crisis 117
Rational Decision-Making? 122
Homo Bureaucraticus 123
Homo Sociologicus 130
Homo Psychologicus 134
Assessing the Three Perspectives 142

Chapter 7 An Agonizing Decision: Escalating the Vietnam War 145
Why Did Johnson Escalate? 149
Homo Bureaucraticus 149
Homo Sociologicus 154
Homo Psychologicus 156
Assessing the Three Perspectives 163

Chapter 8 Disaster in the Desert: The Iran Hostage Crisis 166
The Hostages Are Taken 168
Explaining Carter’s Decisions 174
Homo Bureaucraticus 177
Homo Sociologicus 182
Homo Psychologicus 185
Assessing the Three Perspectives 190
Chapter 9  NATO Intervenes: Seventy-Eight Days Over Kosovo  195
The Historical Background to the Conflict  197
  Homo Bureaucraticus  200
  Homo Sociologicus  207
  Homo Psychologicus  210
Assessing the Three Perspectives  215

Chapter 10  Into Iraq: A War of Choice  218
Why Did the United States Decide to Invade Iraq?  218
  Homo Bureaucraticus  222
  Homo Sociologicus  226
  Homo Psychologicus  232
Assessing the Three Perspectives  246

Chapter 11  Conclusions: A Personal View  248

NOTES  255

BIBLIOGRAPHY  259

INDEX  273