Julius H. Schoeps

Pioneers of Zionism: Hess, Pinsker, Rülf

Messianism, Settlement Policy, and the Israeli-Palestinian Conflict

DE GRUYTER
Contents

Introduction — 1

Moses Hess:
Between Messianism and social utopia — 11
  Causes and justifications for his intellectual reversal — 12
  "Rom und Jerusalem" — 18
  Berthold Auerbach and Heinrich Graetz — 22
  Messianic faith, the Jewish national debate and criticism of "Rom und Jerusalem" — 28

Leon Pinsker:
Auto-emancipation and self-help — 34
  Rejection of "Russification" — 35
  "Auto-emancipation!" — 37
  Anti-Semitism — a hereditary psychosis? — 39
  Pinsker's Jewish national concept — 40
  Practical steps and the colonization of Palestine — 44
  Death and posthumous reputation — 46

Isaak Rülf:
Persecution and relief measures — 50
  Aid to destitute Jews in Russia — 51
  The journey to Kovno — 54
  "Three days in Jewish Russia" — 56
  From "Golus" to "Cherus":
  "Aruchas Bas-Ammi. Israels Heilung" — 60
  From Katowice to Basel — 66

Epilogue, or:
the attempt at a conclusion — 74
  Theodor Herzl and his predecessors — 77
  Eretz Israel: the Promised Land — 80
  Zionism and the "Arab question" — 85
  The (non-)resolution of a dilemma — 90
Excerpts from works of
Moses Hess, Leon Pinsker und Isaak Rülf — 108
  Moses Hess: “Rom und Jerusalem” (1862) — 108
  Leon Pinsker: “Autoemancipation!” (1882) — 114
  Isaak Rülf: “Aruchas Bas-Ammi” (1883) — 120

Notes — 126

List of abbreviations — 141

Glossary — 142

Bibliography — 145

List of illustrations — 155

Index of names — 156