

The Botanical City

Matthew Gandy and Sandra Jasper [eds.]

Contents

6

The city as a botanical field

Matthew Gandy and Sandra Jasper

16

Part 1

Histories and taxonomies

18

Signs of life: interview with Herbert Sukopp

22

The metabolic city and the city of biotopes: Paul Duvigneaud and Herbert Sukopp

Jens Lachmund

30

Urban granaries, planetary thresholds

Nigel Clark

38

The flora of bombed areas (an allegorical key)

Seth Denizen

46

Vegetation as testimony: botanical traces of the urban past

Moritz von der Lippe

54

The curious disappearance of the Ennore Creek

Bhavani Raman

62

Phoenix canariensis* in Lisbon's new ecologies: a post-phenomenological tracing of a palm tree in a disused gasworks

Daniel Paiva

71

Urban plants and colonial durabilities

Henrik Ernstson

82

Ailanthus altissima*, or the botanical afterlives of European power

Bettina Stoetzer

91

Seeing, surveying, and sorting urban trees: the 1970s street tree project in Dresden

Sonja Dümpelmann

100

Vertical ecologies: the balcony biotopes of Berlin

Dorothee Brantz

107

Drying greens, commons, and the possibilities of the botanical (in one quiet corner of London)

Marcus Nyman

120

Part 2

Botanizing the asphalt

122

The flight of seeds

Mara Polgovsky Ezcurra

131

Dandelions at work: a street corner tale of ecosystem services

Alexandra R. Toland

139

Plants in the urban night

Bergit Arends

146

Toxic tour: Houston's environmental apartheid and institutional liberation

T. J. Demos

161

Queering the transect

Matthew Gandy

170

Walking with plants:
disrupting the material logics of degrado at the banks of Turin's Stura river

Lucilla Barchetta

178

Following mosquitoes into an urban forest

Nida Rehman

185

Rhizome city: tracing knotweed through the soils of Brussels

Livia Cahn

196

Part 3 The art of urban flora

Lois Weinberger

Zheng Bo

Mona Caron

Yan Wang Preston

Uriel Orlow

214

Part 4 Experiments in non-design

216

Framing urban landscapes: interview with Susanne Hauser

221

Acoustic botany: listening to nature in a former airfield

Sandra Jasper

229

There's life in dead wood:
tracing a more-than-human urbanity in the spontaneous nature of Gothenburg

Mathilda Rosengren

237

From undead commodities to lively labourers:
(re)valuing vegetal life, reclaiming the power to design-with plants

Marion Ernwein

243

Tracing the urban pastoral in Tallinn: Leo Marx, Karl Marx, and urban political aesthetics

Maroš Krivý

253

Tokyo ecology:
the Akabane Nature Observation Park

Kumiko Kiuchi

266

Red leaves

Suili Xiao

272

Part 5 Cartographic imaginations

274

Urban plants:
a window on how ecology
becomes evolution

Peter Del Tredici

282

Discovering and mapping
urban plants

Mark Spencer

293

Mapping the urban flora of Berlin

Birgit Seitz

300

Nature is for everyone:
investigating attitudes to urban biodiversity

Leonie Fischer

305

Urban cemeteries in Berlin and beyond:
life in the grounds of the dead

Ingo Kowarik

314

Contributors

322

Acknowledgments