Part I Basic Concepts	1
1 Conceptualisations of Age	7
1.1 Biological Ageing	10
1.2 Psychological Ageing	12
1.2.1 Cognitive Age	12
1.2.2 Self-perceived Age	12
1.2.3 Subjective Age	13
1.2.4 Ideal Age	14
1.3 Social Ageing	15
1.3.1 Social Age	15
1.3.2 Distance to Retirement	17
1.3.3 Temporal Context of Events	17
1.4 Chronological Age Thresholds and Public Administration and Policy	18
References	22
2 Age, Period, Cohort, and Generational Effects	31
2.1 Age Effects	34
2.2 Period Effects	34
2.3 Cohort Effects	34
2.4 Generation	36
2.5 Age-Period-Cohort Models	39

2.6	Cohort Table	40
2.7	Identification Problem	42
	References	49
3	Life Cycle, Life Course, Lifespan	55
3.1	Life Cycle	55
3.2	Life Course	56
3.3	Lifespan	57
3.4	Transitions, Trajectories, and Turning Points	58
3.5	Principles of the Life Course Perspective	60
3.6	Two Hypotheses: Cumulative Advantage/Disadvantage and Age-as-Leveller	61
	References	66
4	Theories of Individual Ageing	71
4.1	Biological	71
4.1.1	Cellular Ageing	73
4.1.2	Free Radicals	74
4.1.3	Loss of Proteostasis	75
4.1.4	Epigenetics	76
4.1.5	The Hallmarks of Ageing	77
4.1.6	Allostatic Load	78
4.1.7	Redundancy and Deficit Accumulation	79
4.2	Psychological	80
4.2.1	Selective Optimisation with Compensation Model of Ageing	82
4.2.2	Ecological Model of Ageing	83
4.2.3	Activity Theory	84
4.2.4	Continuity Theory	84
4.2.5	Disengagement Theory	84
4.2.6	Cognitive Theories	86
4.2.7	Control Theories	89
4.2.8	Psychological Ageing and Subjective Age	90
4.3	Sociological	90
4.3.1	Disengagement Theory	91
4.3.2	Activity Theory	91
4.3.3	Continuity Theory	91
4.3.4	Age Stratification	92
4.3.5	Modernisation Theory	93

4.3.6	Life Course Perspective	93
4.3.7	Cumulative Advantage and Disadvantage	93
4.3.8	Political Economy Theory	93
4.3.9	Social Constructivism	93
4.3.10	Social Exchange Theory	94
4.3.11	Feminist Theory	94
	References	99

Part II Demographics, Population Ageing, and Economics 109

5	Introduction to Demography and Economics	111
5.1	Fertility	115
5.2	Mortality	117
5.3	Migration	122
5.4	Demographic Measures of Population Ageing	123
	References	142

6	Economic Theories of Demographic Change	149
6.1	Economic Theories of Fertility	150
6.1.1	Becker's Approach to Fertility	150
6.1.2	Leibenstein's Approach	154
6.1.3	Easterlin's Relative Income Hypothesis	155
6.1.4	Easterlin's Age Structure Hypothesis	157
6.1.5	Value of Children Theory	158
6.1.6	Wealth Flows Theory	159
6.1.7	Second Demographic Transition, Postponement Transition, and Fertility Rebound	160
6.1.8	Intra-Household Decision-Making	162
6.2	Economic Theories of Mortality	162
6.2.1	National Income and Mortality	165
6.2.2	Individual Income and Mortality	180
6.2.3	Is the Human Lifespan Getting Longer?	182
6.2.4	The Epidemiologic Transition	183

6.3	Economic Theories of Migration	184
6.3.1	Some Economic Models of Migration	185
6.3.2	Is Migration the Answer to Population Ageing?	189
	References	199

Part III A Brief Incursion into the Epistemology of Economics 217

7	Models and Time in Economics	219
7.1	Models	219
7.2	Time	234
7.2.1	Statics/Dynamics	237
7.2.2	Continuous/Discrete	239
7.2.3	Stock/Flow	239
7.2.4	Short Run/Long Run	240
	References	245

Part IV Four Theoretical Frameworks for the Study of Economics and Ageing 253

8	Life-Cycle Framework	255
8.1	A Basic, Stripped-Down LC Model	260
8.1.1	Consumption of Durable and Non-durable Goods	262
8.2	Bequests and the LC Framework	272
8.3	Uncertainty in the LC Framework	278
8.4	Endogenous Work/Retirement Transition	281
8.5	Social Security Benefits, Life Insurance, and Annuities in the LC Framework	282
8.5.1	Social Security	283
8.5.2	Life Insurance and Annuities	284
8.6	The Retirement-Consumption 'Puzzle'	286
8.7	Other Motives to Save	289
8.8	Financial Literacy Along the Life Cycle	290
8.9	LC Hypothesis and Departures from the Rational Behaviour Assumption	291

8.10	Macroeconomic Implications	299
8.11	Increasing Longevity, Dependency Ratios, and Saving	302
8.12	Children and Migration	303
8.13	Propensity to Consume	304
8.14	Interest Rates	305
8.15	The Life-Cycle Framework and Empirical Evidence	305
8.16	The Life-Cycle Model in Economics and in Social Gerontology	312
	References	322
9	The Overlapping Generations Framework	335
9.1	Introduction	335
9.2	Rationale	337
9.3	The OLG in Practice	340
	References	348
10	Perpetual Youth and Dynastic Models	351
10.1	Perpetual Youth Models	351
10.2	Dynastic Models	355
	References	362
