

Carmen Ludwig

The Politics of Solidarity

Privatisation, Precarious Work and Labour in South Africa

Campus Verlag
Frankfurt/New York

Table of Contents

Acknowledgements	9
1 Introduction	13
1.1 Central Research Question and Aims of Research.....	16
1.2 Overview of the Book.....	18
2 Theoretical Framework: Solidarity and Trade Union Power Resources	21
2.1 Scales of Power: Conceptualising Workers' Power Resources.....	21
2.2 Power through Organisation.....	31
2.3 The Power to Disrupt Within and Outside the Workplace	35
2.4 Society as an Ally.....	37
2.5 The Dual Character of Institutional Power	40
2.6 Trade Union Strategies between Inclusive and Exclusive Solidarity	42
2.7 Interim Conclusion and Stages of Inquiry	44
3 Methodology and Research Design	47
3.1 Setting the Stage: The Selection of the Three Research Sites	48
3.2 Participant Observation and Problem-centred Interviews.....	51
3.3 Analysing the Field with the Extended Case Method.....	61

3.4	Conducting Research in a Contested Field	64
4	From Apartheid to Post-Apartheid: Labour in a Contested Terrain	69
4.1	Contesting the Labour Regime, Building Associational Power: A Brief History of the South African Labour Movement.....	69
4.2	From the Freedom Charter to GEAR: Conflicts within the Alliance on Macroeconomic Policy.....	78
4.3	Privatising Local Government: The Legislative Framework	83
4.4	The Fragmentation of the South African Labour Market: Core, Non-core, Periphery.....	89
4.5	The South African Labour Movement at a Crossroads.....	96
5	Privatisation and the Commodification of Public Services in Johannesburg and Cape Town.....	105
5.1	The Post-Apartheid Challenge: Restructuring Johannesburg	106
5.2	Hollowing out the local state: iGoli 2002.....	110
5.3	The SAMWU Response to iGoli 2002	116
5.4	Restructuring and Privatisation in Cape Town	127
5.5	The SAMWU Response to Privatisation.....	136
6	A Partial Inclusive Union Strategy: Organising a Fragmented Municipal Workforce in Johannesburg	141
6.1	Facing the Divide: The increasing Fragmentation of the Workforce in Pikitup	141
6.2	Contesting what a Labour Broker is: The Triangular Employment Relationship in Pikitup	153
6.3	The Manufacturing of Insecurity in the Workplace	160
6.4	The Pikitup Strike of 2011.....	166
6.5	Failing Interactions between Contract Workers and SAMWU ...	195

6.6	A Sense of Belonging: CWP Workers seeking Union Representation	209
6.7	Interim Conclusion: A Partial Inclusive Strategy of Union Representation	218
7	An Inclusive Union Strategy: Organising a Fragmented Municipal Workforce in Cape Town	221
7.1	Confronting the Effects of Privatisation in Cape Town	221
7.2	Experiences in Organising Workers in Private Waste Companies	237
7.3	The Campaign against Labour Broking in Cape Town	245
7.4	An Uphill Battle: Taking up the Struggle of EPWP Workers	256
7.5	Mobilising Power Resources: Extending the Core	288
7.6	Logistical Power and the Contested Post-Apartheid Order	290
7.7	Discursive Power and the Legitimacy of Claims.....	294
7.8	Labour and Community Alliances in Cape Town	296
7.9	Interim Conclusion: An Inclusive Union Strategy.....	302
8	An Exclusive Union Strategy: Organising a Fragmented Municipal Workforce in Ekurhuleni.....	305
8.1	Conditions and Effects of Outsourcing in the Ekurhuleni Metropolitan Municipality.....	305
8.2	“SAMWU we need our jobs back”: Cleaning Workers in Ekurhuleni.....	311
8.3	Alternative Forms of Organisation: The Casual Workers Advice Office in Germiston.....	318
8.4	Exclusive Solidarity: SAMWU’s Strategy towards Non-core Workers	320

9 Conclusion.....	325
Figures.....	335
Tables.....	337
Abbreviations.....	339
References.....	342
Index.....	377