Mahmoud Sami Nabi

Making the Tunisian Resurgence

palgrave
macmillan
CONTENTS

1 The Revolution and the Post-Revolution Political Arena
1.1 The Roots of the Revolution
1.2 The Post-Revolution Political Arena
  1.2.1 The Political Scene After the 2011 Elections
  1.2.2 The Difficult Gestation and Adoption of the New Constitution
  1.2.3 The Political Scene After the 2014 Elections
1.3 The Emergence of a More Cohesive Country?
  1.3.1 Social Cohesion After the Revolution
  1.3.2 Has Tunisia Resolved the Modernity-Identity Equation?
References

2 Diagnosing the Tunisian Economy
2.1 In Progress Toward More Inclusive Human Development
2.2 A Diversified and Dual Economy ... Enthralled in the “Middle-Income” Trap
  2.2.1 A Dualistic and Non-Inclusive Economy
  2.2.2 The Private, Public and Informal Sectors
  2.2.3 The Sectoral Composition of the Economy
  2.2.4 Investment and Entrepreneurship
2.3 Weak Business Environment
CONTENTS

4.6 Importance of Leadership
  4.6.1 Leadership and Change
  4.6.2 Institutional Leadership
References

5 Unlocking Tunisia's Economic Potential
  5.1 Modernizing the Tunisian State
  5.2 Developing a New Social Contract
    5.2.1 What Is a Social Contract?
    5.2.2 What Was the Social Contract Before the Revolution?
    5.2.3 The Need of a Social Contract Ensuring Social Progress and Inclusiveness
    5.2.4 Institutionalizing the Social Dialogue
  5.3 Toward an Open, Fair and More Productive Economy
  5.4 Immunizing the Tunisian Economy Against the Political Instability
  5.5 Creating a Tunisian Development Institute
  5.6 Daring a Pluralistic Approach of Economic Development
  5.7 Modernizing the Judicial and the Property Rights Systems
    5.7.1 Modernizing the Judicial System and Improving the Enforceability of Contracts
    5.7.2 Developing the Property Rights System
  5.8 Disrupting the Financial System to Improve Financial Inclusiveness
References

6 Daring New Financial Channels for Development and Social Inclusion
  6.1 Securitization as a Channel of Mobilizing Funds for the State Budget
    6.1.1 Issuing Zero-Coupon Bonds to Finance Wage Bills
    6.1.2 Securitization to Reduce Public Subsidization of the Social Security Institutions
    6.1.3 Securitization to Finance Infrastructure Development
    6.1.4 Role of Sukuk in Raising Financial Resources
    6.1.5 Issuing GDP-indexed Bonds
References
XX CONTENTS

6.1.6 Issuing Diaspora Investment Bonds 117
6.1.7 Activating the PPP 118

6.2 Developing Equity Finance and Crowdfunding to Improve Access to Finance 119
6.2.1 Governmental Intervention to Improve Access to Finance 120
6.2.2 Unlocking the Crowdfunding 121

6.3 Daring Targeted Quantitative Easing 122
6.3.1 The Monetary Policy Framework of the Central Bank of Tunisia 122
6.3.2 Weak Efficiency of the Quantitative Easing 123
6.3.3 Introducing a Targeted Quantitative Easing 124

6.4 Participatory Banking, Cooperatives and Microfinance 126
6.4.1 The Debate on Wealth and Income Inequality 126
6.4.2 Can Participatory Banking Reduce Wealth Inequality? 127
6.4.3 Participatory Banks for Rural Development 129
6.4.4 Coupling Microfinance with Cooperatives 130

6.5 Social Impact Bonds for Modern and Efficient Philanthropy 133
6.5.1 Philanthropy: Zaqat and Waqf 133
6.5.2 Social Impact Bonds 136
6.5.3 Creating a National Solidarity Institution 137

References 138

7 Tunisia’s Integration in the Global Economy 143
7.1 Integrating the Global Economy with Method 143
7.1.1 The “Flying Geese” Catching-Up Process and the Industrial Policy 143
7.1.2 Facilitating the Integration of SMEs in the Global Value Chains 145

7.2 Adopting a Prudent Approach to Capital Account Liberalization 147
7.2.1 The Sequencing and Rapidity of Capital Account Liberalization 148
7.2.2 The Capital Account Liberalization in Tunisia 149

References 150
8 Moving Toward a Knowledge-Based Economy

8.1 Knowledge Management by a "Creative State" 153
8.2 What Are the Drivers of a Knowledge Economy? 155
8.3 Adopting an ICT-Based Strategy for Digital Capital Accumulation 156
8.4 Improving the Ecosystem of Education, Innovation and Research 159
8.5 Benefiting from the Global Opportunities in the IT-Enabled Services and Data Science Fields 162
8.6 Accelerating the Digitalization of the Economy 163

9 Appendix: Aspects from the History of Tunisia

9.1 Some Aspects from Tunisia's Contribution to Human Civilization 167
  9.1.1 The Carthaginian Tunisia and Hannibal 167
  9.1.2 Some Prominent Tunisian Figures During the Golden Age of the Muslim World 168
  9.1.3 Abbas Bahri: A Prominent Contemporary Tunisian Mathematician 171
9.2 The Political Reform Attempt of the Nineteenth Century 172
9.3 From the French "Protectorate" to Independence 174
9.4 The Political System and Place of Religion After the Independence 175
  9.4.1 Evolution of the Political System 175
  9.4.2 Bourguiba's Modernization Approach 177
  9.4.3 Rise of Political Islam 178

References 180

References

Index

199