Geopolitics and Development

Marcus Power
Contents

List of figures x
Acknowledgements xvii
List of abbreviations xix

1 INTRODUCTION: GEOPOLITICS AND THE ASSEMBLAGE OF DEVELOPMENT 1
• Introduction: the anti-politics of development 1
• Theorising (post-)development 6
• Critical geopolitics and development 18
• Situating development historically 22
• An Afrocentric focus 34
• The structure of the book 38

2 POST-COLONIALISM, GEOPOLITICS AND THE PERIPHERY 40
• Introduction: the changing metageographies of development 40
• Tropicality and Orientalism 44
• The rise of the Area Studies complex 54
• IR, Political Geography and Development 59
• Placing Africa in IR and Political Geography 67
• Conclusions: towards a subaltern geopolitics of development 73
3 MODERNISING THE “THIRD WORLD”
- Introduction: a global history of modernisation 80
- The Third World as ideological project 83
- The Soviet Union and the “romance” of economic development 92
- The US and the Third World 99
- Arresting the communist “contagion”: theorising modernisation in the US 105
- JFK, the “decade of development” and the rise of “developmentese” 108
- Conclusions: the ghosts of Cold War modernisation 118

4 COLD WAR GEOPOLITICS AND FOREIGN AID
- Introduction: Cold War foreign aid and the battle for the Third World 124
- From the periphery to the periphery: the USSR and foreign aid 128
- China in Africa: advancing a “subaltern globalism”? 141
- US foreign aid and the countering of insurgency 148
- Conclusions: an emerging governmental rationality of development 160

5 THE STATE AND DEVELOPMENT
- Introduction: the state is dead, long live the state 168
- Theorising the state 175
- States, infrastructures and resource geographies 180
- The state and insurgency 186
- Contesting state power: social movements 196
- Conclusions: spaces of subaltern struggle 204

6 THE POLITICAL GEOGRAPHIES OF CONTEMPORARY US FOREIGN ASSISTANCE
- Introduction: reconstruction as war 211
- The securitisation of development 220
- Reinventing USAID: the security–economy nexus 224
- The revival of development-based counter-insurgency 230
- The US and counter-insurgency in Africa: draining the “swamp of terror” 237
- Conclusions: (re)militarising development 247
7 THE RISE OF THE SOUTH 254

- Introduction: the revival of South–South development cooperation 254
- Brazil as a “conduit for pan-Southern action” 261
- China as emerging global development hegemon 267
- South Korea: exporting a story of developmental “success” 280
- India–Africa development cooperation 284
- Conclusions: the “emancipatory” potential of (re-)emerging donors? 288

8 CONCLUSIONS: DEVELOPMENT AND (COUNTER-)INSURGENCY 296

- The excess of development 296
- Post-development, state power and insurgency 300
- Re-centring Africa and development in Political Geography and IR 306
- Modernisation and Cold War geopolitics 309
- Development and Pacification 311
- SSDC and the changing dynamics of development diplomacy 316
- The shifting spatialities of contemporary development 323

Bibliography

Index