Who Owns Sport?

Edited by Andrew Adams and Leigh Robinson
Contents

List of figures viii
List of tables ix
List of contributors x

Introduction 1
ANDREW ADAMS AND LEIGH ROBINSON

1 Ownership of sport: philosophical perspectives 7
ALUN HARDMAN

Introduction 7
Ownership – legal, moral and political 9
Ownership – the genesis of the concept 10
Sport, communitarianism and ownership 13
Sport ownership – acquisition, excess and power 17
Conclusion 18

2 Ownership and the history of sport 20
WRAY VAMPLEW

The coming of modern sport 20
Ownership and control 22
Ownership and clubs 23
Ownership and patronage 24
Ownership and entrepreneurship 27
Conclusion 30
3 Corporate ownership of sport

DANIEL PLUMLEY AND ROBB WILSON

Introduction 33
What is corporate ownership? 33
Economic theory of professional team sports 35
Ownership types 37
Ownership models in English football 37
The stock market model 38
The supporter trust model of ownership 39
The foreign ownership model 40
The 'domestic' private model 41
European club ownership 42
Are these models acceptable in football? 44
Conclusion 44

4 Who owns community sport?

RUTH JEANES AND RYAN LUCAS

Introduction 46
Community ownership of sport 47
Sports governing bodies, local authorities and ownership of community sport 48
Broader government policy and ownership of community sport 51
Commercial and informal community sport 53
Conclusion: who owns community sport? 54

5 Politics, policy and the ownership of sport

CERI WYNNE

Introduction 59
Owning elite sport 64
Conclusion 66

6 Ownership of sport for development and peace

IAIN LINDSEY

Introduction 70
International stakeholders and ownership in SDP 71
In-country stakeholders and ownership of SDP within the global South 74
Conclusions 79

7 Who owns sport at sport mega events?
KRISTINE TOOHEY

Definition of sport mega event ownership 85
Stakeholders 86
SME stakeholders 88
   Event owners 88
   Nations and cities 89
   The media 91
   Host city communities 92
   Protest groups 93
   Athletes and volunteers 94
   Sponsors 95
   Organising committees 97
Conclusion and future directions 98

8 Towards a framework for understanding who owns sport
ANDREW ADAMS

Introduction 102
Sport, property and ownership 103
Sport ownership as a bundle of rights 104
Applying bundles 109
   Conceptualising a sport ownership framework 111
Conclusion and future directions 113

Conclusion
ANDREW ADAMS AND LEIGH ROBINSON

Public sector 117
Private sector 120
Voluntary sector 121

Index 125