Land Acquisition in Asia
Towards a Sustainable Policy Framework
CONTENTS

1 Introduction
   Naoyuki Yoshino and Saumik Paul

Part I Conceptual Foundations: Displacement and Welfare

2 Interdisciplinary Approach to Long-Term Welfare Effects of Displacement
   Lai Ming Lam and Saumik Paul

3 Short-Term Versus Long-Term Effects of Forced Displacement
   Sayak Khatua and Vengadeshvaran Sarma

Part II Regional Accounts: Socio-Economic Effects of Displacement

4 The Long-Term Livelihood Effects of the Conservation-Led Displacement in Kanchanpur, Nepal
   Lai Ming Lam, Basant Pant, and Vengadeshvaran Sarma
5 Attitudes Toward Land Acquisition in Indonesia
Naoyuki Yoshino, Rasyad A. Parinduri, and Yoko Oishi

6 The Political Economy of Caste, Forced Displacement and Impact on Local Communities’ Welfare in Nepal
Lai Ming Lam, Basant Pant, and Vengadeshvaran Sarma

7 Special Economic Zones and Livelihood Changes: Evidence from India
Saumik Paul and Vengadeshvaran Sarma

8 Attitudes Towards Forced Displacement in West Bengal, India: To Move (Again) or Not?
Saumik Paul and Vengadeshvaran Sarma

Part III Way Forward: Policy Measures

9 Land Trust to Facilitate Development Through Land Transfer
Naoyuki Yoshino, Saumik Paul, Vengadeshvaran Sarma, and Saloni Lakhia

10 Economic Development and Effects on Land
Shreyas P. Bharule

11 Land Pooling as a Means of Mitigating Land Displacement in India
Saloni Lakhia

12 Conclusion
Naoyuki Yoshino and Saumik Paul