Contents

Preface xi
Acknowledgements xvi
List of Figures and Tables xvii

1 Introduction: the Study of the Greek Economic Crisis in Europe through the Media 1
1.1 Contextual Issues, Critical Political Economy and Cultural Studies 3
1.2 European Mass Media as the Empirical Material of the Study 6
1.2.1 A Brief Excursion on Liberalism and its Discontents 8
1.2.2 Greek, Danish and German Mainstream News Media 10
1.3 On Method: Thematic Analysis, Discourse Theory Analysis, Critical Discourse Analysis 14
1.3.1 The Relevance of Discourse Theory 15
1.3.2 Critical Discourse Analysis Perspectives 18
1.4 The Analytical Pillars: Race, Class, Politics 20
1.4.1 On Race 20
1.4.1.1 Colonial Remainders: An “Eternal” Greece 23
1.4.2 On Class 30
1.4.2.1 Dismantling Class Privilege 35
1.4.3 Theorizing (Post)Politics 39
1.5 An Outline of the Chapters to Follow 45

2 Greek Crisis, Eurozone Crisis, Global Capitalist Crisis 48
2.1 Setting the “Greek Crisis” in Perspective 48
2.2 A Crisis of Capitalism and Capitalist Crises: A Brief Excursion into Marxist Analyses 56
2.3 Crisis and Restructuring: Neoliberalism, Globalisation, Financialisation 63
2.4 The Greek Crisis as a Symptom: Centre (Core) and Periphery Divisions 69
2.5 The EU, the Euro, and Austerity 73
2.6 Debt, Austerity and Primary Accumulation 78
2.7 Concluding Remarks: Understanding Capitalism as Religion 85

3 The “Greek Crisis” in the Media: Hegemony, Spectacle and Propaganda 87
3.1 Media Aspects 87
CONTENTS

3.2 Political Communication and the Public Sphere 88
3.3 Understanding Hegemony 92
   3.3.1 The "Greek Crisis" in the Media: A Critical Overview 93
   3.3.2 Hegemony, Propaganda and Biopolitics 97
3.4 Spectacular Dimensions of the "Greek Crisis" 105
3.5 Concluding Remarks: Interpellating and Disciplining the Working Class 110

4 A Cultural Failure: Reification, Orientalism, Nationalism 113
   4.1 Introduction: (I)liberal Uses of Culture 114
   4.2 Hegemonic Constructions of the (Occidental) Self and the (Oriental) Other 115
   4.3 Greece as a non/quasi-European Other 120
      4.3.1 The Culturalisation of Greece and its Crisis 121
      4.3.2 Greece as a Commodity: Media Rituals to Sustain Ideological Myths 134
      4.3.3 Nationalism, Narcissism, Anxiety: Europe as a Panopticon and a Benchmark 140
   4.4 Concluding Remarks: The Occident, the Orient and the Liberal Meritocracy Cult 150

5 Under a Middle-Class Gaze 153
   5.1 Governing Inequality 153
   5.2 The Middle-Class Gaze and the Media 154
   5.3 "The Loser" as a Master Class Frame 156
   5.4 The Greek Crisis and the Construction of "Losers" 158
      5.4.1 The Irrational: Ignorant, Irresponsible, and Frustrated 160
      5.4.2 The Immoral: Lazy, Profligate, Deceitful and Bankrupt 164
      5.4.3 The Threatening Other: Resentment, Spite, and Loath 170
      5.4.4 Idealising the Bourgeois; the Enduring Myths of a Peripheral Upper Class 176
   5.5 Concluding Remarks: Reaction, Diversion, Division 179

6 Exceptionalising the Crisis, Normalising Austerity 183
   6.1 Technocratic Politics 183
   6.2 Establishing the Crisis and Austerity in Depoliticised Terms 184
      6.2.1 The Eurozone Crisis as an Apocalyptic Spectacle: Mediatised States of Exception 185
6.2.2 Naturalising Austerity: the Only Solution (Without an Alternative) 191
6.2.3 The "Extreme Center" and Constructions of "Realism" 199
6.3 Concluding Remarks: Authoritarian Capitalism with Fascist Dispositions 209

7 Conclusions: Context, Politics, Negativity 213
7.1 Reinventing Critique, Reinventing Politics 213
7.2 Debunking Hegemony's Crisis' Myths 215
7.3 The Making of Regimes of Entitlement: Class is at the Heart of the Matter 219
7.4 Capitalism is Apocalyptic: Politicising the Crisis, Austerity, the "Free Market", and the (Capitalist) Economy 221
7.5 Negativity and Utopia 223

Bibliography 229
Index 251