Detailed Contents

Preface

Acknowledgments

CHAPTER 1 • Changing Organizations in Our Complex World

- Defining Organizational Change
- The Orientation of This Book
  - Environmental Forces Driving Change Today
- The Implications of Worldwide Trends for Change Management
  - Four Types of Organizational Change
  - Planned Changes Don’t Always Produce the Intended Results
- Organizational Change Roles
  - Change Initiators
  - Change Implementers
  - Change Facilitators
  - Common Challenges for Managerial Roles
  - Change Recipients
- The Requirements for Becoming a Successful Change Leader
- Summary
- Key Terms
- End-of-Chapter Exercises

CHAPTER 2 • How to Lead Organizational Change: Frameworks

- Differentiating How to Change from What to Change
- The Processes of Organizational Change
- (1) Stage Theory of Change: Lewin
  - Unfreeze
  - Change
  - Refreeze: or more appropriately Re-gell
- (2) Stage Model of Organizational Change: Kotter
  - Kotter’s Eight-Stage Process
- (3) Giving Voice to Values: Gentile
  - GVV and Organizational Change
- (4) Emotional Transitions Through Change: Duck
  - Duck’s Five-Stage Change Curve
- (5) Managing the Change Process: Beckhard and Harris
- (6) The Change Path Model: Deszca and Ingols
Application of the Change Path Model 55

Awakening: Why Change? 55

Mobilization: Activating the Gap Analysis 55

Acceleration: Getting from Here to There 56

Institutionalization: Using Data to Help Make the Change Stick 57

Summary 57

Key Terms 58

End-of-Chapter Exercises 60

» CASE STUDY: "Not an Option to Even Consider:"
Contending With the Pressures to Compromise by Heather Bodman and Cynthia Ingols 63

CHAPTER 3 • What to Change in an Organization: Frameworks 68

Open Systems Approach to Organizational Analysis 71

(1) Nadler and Tushman's Congruence Model 71

History and Environment 72

Strategy 72

The Transformation Process 73

Work 73

The Formal Organization 74

The Informal Organization 74

People 75

Outputs 75

An Example Using Nadler and Tushman's Congruence Model 77

Evaluating Nadler and Tushman's Congruence Model 81

(2) Sterman's Systems Dynamics Model 83

(3) Quinn's Competing Values Model 85

(4) Greiner's Model of Organizational Growth 87

(5) Stacey's Complexity Theory 90

Summary 92

Key Terms 93

End-of-Chapter Exercises 94

» CASE STUDY: Sarah's Snacks by Paul Myers 97

CHAPTER 4 • Building and Energizing the Need for Change 100

Understanding the Need for Change 104

Seek Out and Make Sense of External Data 105

Seek Out and Make Sense of the Perspectives of Stakeholders 106

Seek Out and Make Sense of Internal Data 108

Seek Out and Assess Your Personal Concerns and Perspectives 108

Assessing the Readiness for Change 110

Heightening Awareness of the Need for Change 115

Factors That Block People from Recognizing the Need for Change 120

Developing a Powerful Vision for Change 124

The Difference Between an Organizational Vision and a Change Vision 130

Examples of Visions for Change 132
Tools to Assess the Need for Change 206
   Identifying the Organizational Dynamics at Play 209
Summary 218
Key Terms 219
Checklist: Stakeholder Analysis 220
End-of-Chapter Exercises 221
   ▶ CASE STUDY: Patrick’s Problem by Stacy Blake-Beard 225

CHAPTER 7 • Managing Recipients of Change and Influencing Internal Stakeholders 227
   Stakeholders Respond Variably to Change Initiatives 229
      Not Everyone Sees Change as Negative 229
   Responding to Various Feelings in Stakeholders 234
      Positive Feelings in Stakeholders: Channeling Their Energy 234
      Ambivalent Feelings in Stakeholders: They Can Be Useful 235
      Negative Reactions to Change by Stakeholders:
         These Too Can Be Useful 237
   Make the Change of the Psychological Contract Explicit and Transparent 240
      Predictable Stages in the Reaction to Change 241
      Stakeholders’ Personalities Influence Their Reactions to Change 244
      Prior Experience Impacts a Person’s and Organization’s Perspective on Change 245
      Coworkers Influence Stakeholders’ Views 246
      Feelings About Change Leaders Make a Difference 249
   Integrity is One Antidote to Skepticism and Cynicism 250
   Avoiding Coercion but Pushing Hard: The Sweet Spot? 251
   Creating Consistent Signals from Systems and Processes 252
   Steps to Minimize the Negative Effects of Change 253
      Engagement 253
      Timeliness 254
      Two-Way Communication 254
   Make Continuous Improvement the Norm 256
   Encourage People to Be Change Agents and Avoid the Recipient Trap 257
Summary 257
Key Terms 258
Checklist: How to Manage and Minimize Cynicism About Change 259
End-of-Chapter Exercises 260
   ▶ CASE STUDY: Travelink Solutions by Noah Deszca and Gene Deszca 267

CHAPTER 8 • Becoming a Master Change Agent 279
   Factors That Influence Change Agent Success 282
      The Interplay of Personal Attributes, Situation, and Vision 282
      Change Leaders and Their Essential Characteristics 284
   Developing into a Change Leader 288
      Intention, Education, Self-Discipline, and Experience 288
      What Does Reflection Mean? 289
Developmental Stages of Change Leaders 290
Four Types of Change Leaders 290
Internal Consultants: Specialists in Change 295
External Consultants: Specialized, Paid Change Agents 296
  Provide Subject-Matter Expertise 296
  Bring Fresh Perspectives from Ideas That Have Worked Elsewhere 297
  Provide Independent, Trustworthy Support 297
  Limitations of External Consultants 297
Change Teams 299
Change from the Middle: Everyone Needs to Be a Change Agent 304
Rules of Thumb for Change Agents 305
Summary 306
Key Terms 307
Checklist: Structuring Work in a Change Team 308
End-of-Chapter Exercises 309

CASE STUDY: Master Change Agent: Katherine Gottlieb, Southcentral Foundation by Erin E. Sullivan 316

CHAPTER 9 • Action Planning and Implementation 323
Without a “Do It” Orientation, Things Won’t Happen 324
Prelude to Action: Selecting the Correct Path 327
Plan the Work 330
  Engage Others in Action Planning 333
  Ensure Alignment in Your Action Planning 334
Action Planning Tools 334
  1. To-Do Lists 335
  2. Responsibility Charting 335
  3. Contingency Planning 336
  4. Flow Charting 338
  5. Design Thinking 338
  6. Surveys and Survey Feedback 339
  7. Project Planning and Critical Path Methods 340
  8. Tools to Assess Forces That Affect Outcomes and Stakeholders 341
  9. Leverage Analysis 344
  10. Employee Training and Development 345
  11. Diverse Change Approaches 346
Working the Plan Ethically and Adaptively 348
  Developing a Communication Plan 349
  Timing and Focus of Communications 349
  Key Principles in Communicating for Change 353
  Influencce Strategies 354
Transition Management 357
Summary 360
Key Terms 360
End-of-Chapter Exercises 363

CASE STUDY: Turning Around Cote Construction by Cynthia Ingols, Gene Deszca, and Tupper F. Cawsey 367