

Mirja Schröder

EU Gas Supply Security

A Geopolitical Vision of the Southern Gas Corridor

Nomos

Table of Contents

1. Abbreviations	15
1 Introduction	19
1.1 State of the Art, Research Aim and Research Question	21
1.2 The Research Focus on Natural Gas	26
1.3 Outline of the Study	30
2 Energy - Conceptualising a Multi-Faceted Policy Field	32
2.1 The EU's Energy Policy – a Short Introduction	33
2.1.1 The European Commission as Promoter of a Common Energy Policy	35
2.1.2 The External Dimensions of the EU's Energy Policy	36
2.1.3 Regulatory Framework	38
2.1.3.1 Externalisation of Internal Energy Market Rules: The Gas Directive	40
2.1.3.2 Security of Supply Regulation	43
2.1.3.3 A Pan-European Energy Infrastructure – TEN- E Guidelines	44
2.2 Energy Security	45
2.2.1 Energy Dependence: the EU's Import Dependence	48
2.2.2 A Policy Response: The EU's Drive for Diversification	50
2.3 The European Gas Market – Facts, Figures and Perceptions	51
2.3.1 Mapping the EU's Import Dependency on Russian Gas Pipelines	52
2.3.2 The Search for Alternative Supply Sources – Prospects for the Caspian Region	55
2.3.3 Pipeline Projects for the Southern Gas Corridor	58
3 The Conceptual Framework of Geopolitics	62
3.1 Geopolitics – a Contested Term	62

Table of Contents

3.2	The History of Geopolitics	64
3.3	The Antipode: Anti or Critical Geopolitics as Alternative to Classical Geopolitics	68
4	Critical Geopolitics – Power through Discourse	70
4.1	Space, Statecraft and Vision – Guiding Features in Critical Geopolitics	72
4.1.1	Political Space: Territoriality and Power	73
4.1.2	Intellectuals of Statecraft	75
4.1.3	Geopolitical Visions	76
4.2	Common External Energy Policy: from Energy Governance to Energy Diplomacy	78
4.2.1.1	Energy Community	82
4.2.1.2	European Neighbourhood Policy	83
4.2.1.3	Strategic Energy Dialogues	84
4.3	Criticism and Limits of Critical Geopolitics	85
5	Methodological Framework	88
5.1	Applying Critical Geopolitics’ Discourse Analysis to EU Studies	88
5.2	Research Design and Operationalisation	90
5.2.1	Phase 1: Geopolitical Reasoning and the Grammar of Geopolitics	93
5.2.2	Phase 2: The Three Dimensions of the Geopolitical Vision	96
5.3	Selection of Research Methods	97
5.3.1	Policy Narratives and Geopolitical Reasoning	98
5.3.2	Single Case Study: Turkey and the Southern Gas Corridor	99
5.3.3	Collection of Documents	99

6	The Gas Crises - Categorisation and Particularisation	101
6.1	The 1st Russia-Ukraine Gas Crisis (2006-2008)	102
6.2	In Response to the 2nd Russia-Ukraine Gas Dispute (2009-2013)	109
6.3	The 3rd Russia-Ukraine Gas Crisis and Post-Developments (2014-2016)	115
6.4	The Assemblage of Storylines	122
7	Spatialisation of the Crisis Discourse	125
7.1	Diversification as Key Policy Solution	126
7.2	From Nabucco to TANAP: The Southern Gas Corridor – a Geopolitical Exercise	130
8	The Symbolic, Spatial and Institutional Construction of the SGC and Turkey	136
8.1	The Symbolic Conception – Rhetoric and Images	137
8.1.1	The Symbolic Construction of the Southern Gas Corridor	137
8.1.2	Turkey – a Hub, a Crossroad, a Bridge	140
8.2	The Spatial Dimension	143
8.2.1	The Territorial Scope of the SGC	144
8.2.2	Turkey as One of ‘Us’?	147
8.3	Institutional Settings	150
8.3.1	The Energy Chapter	151
8.3.2	The Energy Community	154
8.3.3	Regional Initiatives and Bilateral Agreements	156
8.3.4	The Institutional Energy Map of the Caspian Region	159
9	Conclusion and Outlook	163
9.1	Research Results I: The ‘Spatialisation’ of Russian-Ukrainian Gas Crises	163
9.2	Research Results II: The Geopolitical Vision of the SGC	166
9.3	Contribution to the Academic Debate, Outlook and Future Research Agendas	169

Table of Contents

10 References	173
11 Primary Sources	192
12 Annex	207