F. A. Hayek and the Epistemology of Politics
The Curious Task of Economics

Scott Scheall
Contents

Preface ix
Acknowledgments xii

Introduction 1

PART I
The problem of policymaker ignorance 11

1 Policymaker ignorance: the first problem of politics and political inquiry 13
   Some terminological clarifications 15
   The logically ancillary nature of the problem of policymaker incentives 15
   The logical priority of the epistemic 19
   A taxonomy of ignorant policymakers 27
   Reflection and foreshadow 29

2 Beyond the socialist oasis: Hayek’s extensions of Mises’ calculation argument 34
   The insurmountable epistemic burden of the administrator of a pure and isolated socialist oasis 35
   Hayek’s epistemology – a first pass 37
   The epistemic burdens of socialist administrators in other contexts 41
   The epistemic burdens of countercyclical economic policymaking and Keynesian demand management 54
   The generality of the reasoning underlying the Austrians’ political-epistemological approach 63
   Reflection and foreshadow 65
3 Liberalism and the problem of policymaker ignorance 75

The epistemic burdens of realizing an effective liberal order: the problem of the epistemic requirements of liberal transitions 77
The epistemic burden of policymaking within liberal environments 96
The epistemic burden of policy inaction 98
Reflection and foreshadow 99

PART II
Hayekian political epistemology 105

4 The epistemological aspects of Hayekian political epistemology 107

Hayek versus Mises on matters epistemological, part one 107
Hayek as theoretical psychologist and epistemological naturalist 112
Reflection and foreshadow 129

5 Political order and disorder as epistemic phenomena 137

Knowledge, planning, social order, and epistemic mechanisms 137
Further epistemic requirements of social order 140
How prices tell you what to do 142
How reputation signals tell scientists (and others) what to do 146
Political order and disorder 151
Reflection and foreshadow 155

6 Hayekian political epistemology as a science of the limits of deliberate political action 158

Hayek versus Keynes yet again 159
A constitutional approach to the problem of policymaker ignorance 170
Functional omniscience and omnipotence 174
Reflection 176

Reflection and foreshadow: what the argument is and what the argument is not 178
Bibliography 183
Index 196