

Political Institutions and Development

Failed Expectations and Renewed Hopes

Edited by

Natalia Dinello

*Principal Political Scientist,
Global Development Network, New Delhi, India*

Vladimir Popov

*Professor,
New Economic School and Academy of the National Economy,
Moscow, Russia*

GLOBAL DEVELOPMENT NETWORK

Edward Elgar

Cheltenham, UK • Northampton, MA, USA

Contents

Notes on the Contributors	vi
Acknowledgments	x
Introduction: What Matters for Institutions' Effect on Development: Conditions and Qualifications Natalia Dinello and Vladimir Popov	1
PART ONE: MACROPOLITICAL INSTITUTIONS: DEMOCRACY, FEDERALISM, DECENTRALIZATION AND ECONOMIC PERFORMANCE
1. Development and the Limits of Institutional Design Francis Fukuyama	21
2. Democracy and Poverty Reduction: Explorations on the Sen Conjecture Luca Barbone, Louise Cord, Katy Hull and Justin Sandefur	43
3. Democratization, Institutional Quality and Economic Growth Victor Polterovich and Vladimir Popov	72
4. Federalism and Political Centralization Ruben Enikolopov and Ekaterina Zhuravskaya	101
5. Democracy and State Effectiveness Shaoguang Wang	140
PART TWO: PARTICIPATION AND GOVERNANCE AT THE LOCAL LEVEL: SUCCESSES AND FAILURES
6. Has Forest Co-management in Malawi Benefited the Poor? Charles B.L. Jumbe and Arild Angelsen	171
7. Participation and Joint Forest Management in Andhra Pradesh, India Bhagirath Behera and Stefanie Engel	200
8. Clientelism, Public Workfare and the Emergence of the Piqueteros in Argentina Lucas Ronconi and Ignacio Franceschelli	228
Index	253