Aid, Drugs, and Informality: Essays in Empirical Economics

Ola Granström

Akademisk avhandling

Som för avläggande av filosofie doktorsexamen vid Handelshögskolan i Stockholm framläggs för offentlig granskning fredagen den 13 juni 2008 klockan 15.15 i sal 750, Handelshögskolan, Sveavägen 65.
Contents

Acknowledgements xi

Summary of Thesis 1

Introduction 3

Summary of Papers 5

References 9

Papers 11

Paper 1. Is Foreign Aid Paternalistic? 13
1. Introduction 13
2. A Review of Related Literature 16
3. Theoretical Definitions 17
4. Experimental Design 20
5. Results 25
6. Concluding Remarks 30
Appendix A 32
Appendix B 35

References 39

Paper 2. Corruption and the Case for Tied Aid 43
1. Introduction 44
2. Theory: Donor Behavior under Perceived Aid Diversion 46
3. Experimental Design 49
4. Results 55
5. Concluding Remarks 59
Appendix A 61
Appendix B 64

References 67

Paper 3. Altruism without Borders? 71
1. Introduction 71
2. Experimental Design 74
3. Results 78
4. Concluding Remarks 85
CONTENTS

Appendix A 88
Appendix B 91

References 95

1. Introduction 99
2. Informality – definition and link to gender 102
3. Data and general methodology 104
4. Women’s work – descriptive statistics 105
5. Occupational choice 106
6. Wage analysis 109
7. Men and women’s informal firms 114
8. Conclusion 115
Appendix A 117

References 127

1. Introduction 131
2. Related Literature 133
3. Hypotheses on Innovation, Market Launch and Sales 136
4. The Data 137
5. Descriptive Statistics 139
6. Analyzing Class A, B and C Drugs 140
7. Analyzing Innovative Versus Imitative Drugs 148
8. First-mover Advantage Analysis 155
9. Concluding Remarks 157
Appendix A 159

References 163