

ALASDAIR MACINTYRE'S
ENGAGEMENT WITH MARXISM

SELECTED WRITINGS 1953–1974

EDITED BY PAUL BLACKLEDGE AND NEIL DAVIDSON

B 366715

Haymarket Books
Chicago, Illinois

Contents

Acknowledgements	xi
Introduction: the Unknown Alasdair MacIntyre	xiii
A Note on Selection and Annotation	li
A Bibliography of Works by Alasdair MacIntyre, 1953–1974	lvii
Chapter One Extracts from Marxism: An Interpretation	1
Chapter Two Marxist Tracts	25
Chapter Three On Not Misrepresenting Philosophy	33
Chapter Four The Algebra of the Revolution	41
Chapter Five Notes from the Moral Wilderness	45
Chapter Six Dr. Marx and Dr. Zhivago	69
Chapter Seven Marcuse, Marxism and the Monolith	77
Chapter Eight The Straw Man of the Age	81
Chapter Nine The 'New Left'	87
Chapter Ten What is Marxist Theory For?	95
Chapter Eleven From MacDonald to Gaitskell	105
Chapter Twelve Communism and British Intellectuals	115

Chapter Thirteen	Freedom and Revolution	123
Chapter Fourteen	Breaking the Chains of Reason	135
Chapter Fifteen	Is a Neutralist Foreign Policy Possible?	167
Chapter Sixteen	The Man who Answered the Irish Question	171
Chapter Seventeen	Culture and Revolution	175
Chapter Eighteen	Marxists and Christians	179
Chapter Nineteen	Rejoinder to Left Reformism	187
Chapter Twenty	Congo, Katanga and the UNO	197
Chapter Twenty-One	Sartre as a Social Theorist	201
Chapter Twenty-Two	The Sleepwalking Society: Britain in the Sixties	209
Chapter Twenty-Three	Open Letter to a Right-Wing Young Socialist	215
Chapter Twenty-Four	[The New Capitalism and the British Working Class]	221
Chapter Twenty-Five	C. Wright Mills	241
Chapter Twenty-Six	Going into Europe	247
Chapter Twenty-Seven	Prediction and Politics	249
Chapter Twenty-Eight	True Voice	263
Chapter Twenty-Nine	Trotsky in Exile	267

Chapter Thirty	Labour Policy and Capitalist Planning	277
Chapter Thirty-One	Marx	291
Chapter Thirty-Two	The Socialism of R.H. Tawney	299
Chapter Thirty-Three	Marxist Mask and Romantic Face: Lukács on Thomas Mann	305
Chapter Thirty-Four	Pascal and Marx: on Lucien Goldmann's Hidden God	317
Chapter Thirty-Five	Recent Political Thought	329
Chapter Thirty-Six	Herbert Marcuse	339
Chapter Thirty-Seven	How Not to Write About Stalin	349
Chapter Thirty-Eight	How to Write About Lenin – and How Not To	355
Chapter Thirty-Nine	The Strange Death of Social Democratic England	361
Chapter Forty	In Place of Harold Wilson?	369
Chapter Forty-One	Marxism of the Will	373
Chapter Forty-Two	Mr Wilson's Pragmatism	381
Chapter Forty-Three	Tell Me Where You Stand on Kronstadt	387
Chapter Forty-Four	Irish Mythologies	395
Chapter Forty-Five	Sunningdale: a 'Colonial' Solution	401

Chapter Forty-Six Irish Conflicts and British Illusions	405
Epilogue. 1953, 1968, 1995: Three Perspectives	411
References	427
Index	437