

Developing Anti-discrimination Law in Europe

The 27 EU Member States, Croatia, Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia and Turkey compared

Prepared by Isabelle Chopin and Thien Uyen Do for the European Network of Legal Experts in the Non-discrimination Field

November 2011
(Based on information current to 1 January 2011')

European Commission
Directorate General for Justice

Manuscript completed in November 2011

- * Information for Turkey is current to 31 December 2009 and consequently is not included in the tables contrasting the other countries covered, for which information is current to 1 January 2011. As regards the major significant changes in a few Member States, such as the bill in Spain for a new comprehensive anti-discrimination law, information may be based on data after 1 January 2011.

Contents

Preface	7	F. Material scope	72
Executive Summary	8	Employment	73
1. Introduction	11	Social protection	74
2. State of play prior to the adoption of the Anti-discrimination Directives	15	Social advantages	75
A. Racial and ethnic origin	17	Education	75
B. Religion and belief	21	Access to and supply of goods and services	78
C. Age	21	5. Exceptions to the principle of equal treatment and positive action	83
D. Disability	22	A. Genuine and determining occupational requirements	85
E. Sexual orientation	23	B. Armed forces and other specific occupations	86
F. Concepts of discrimination	23	C. Nationality	86
G. Specialised bodies	24	D. Family benefits	87
H. Assessment of the situation prior to the adoption of the Directives	25	E. Public security, public order, criminal offences, protection of health, and protection of the rights and freedoms of others	88
3. Current state of play 10 years after the adoption of the Directives	29	F. Other exceptions	88
A. Which grounds are covered?	32	G. Positive action	89
Table: Grounds protected on the national level in various anti-discrimination laws	34	Table: Main grounds and fields where positive action is used in practice	91
B. Racial or ethnic origin	36	6. Access to justice and effective enforcement	93
C. Religion or belief	38	A. Judicial and administrative procedures	94
Specific provisions on religion or belief – ethos-based organisations	40	Legal action in the private sector	94
D. Disability	42	Legal action in the public sector	97
Specific provisions on disability – the reasonable accommodation duty	45	Obstacles to effective access to justice	97
Table: Reasonable accommodation extended in law to other grounds than disability	48	B. Legal standing and associations	101
Specific provisions on disability – health and safety	49	Entities that may engage in procedures	101
E. Sexual orientation	49	To engage 'on behalf of'	103
F. Age	51	Collective redress	104
Specific provisions on age	52	Legitimate interest	105
G. Assumed and associated discrimination	55	C. Burden of proof	106
4. Definitions and scope	59	D. Victimisation	108
A. Direct discrimination	60	Table: Victimisation in national law	110
Table: Prohibition of direct discrimination in national law	61	E. Sanctions and remedies	111
B. Indirect discrimination	62	7. The role of equality bodies compared	119
Table: Prohibition of indirect discrimination in national law	63	Table: National specialised bodies	126
C. Harassment	64	8. Implementation and compliance	135
Table: Prohibition of harassment in national law	66	A. Dissemination of information and social and civil dialogue	136
D. Instructions to discriminate	68	Dissemination of information and awareness raising	137
Table: Prohibition of instructions to discriminate in national law	69	Social and civil dialogue	138
E. Personal scope	70	B. Ensuring compliance	141
		Conclusion	145
		ANNEX 1: Signature/ratification of international conventions	149
		ANNEX 2: Main anti-discrimination legislation	153