

Information Technology and Socialist Construction

The end of capital and the transition to socialism

Daniel E. Saros

Contents

Acknowledgments	xvii
Note on the text	xix
Introduction	1
PART I
The logic of capital	7
1 The seemingly unbreakable capitalist laws of motion	9
2 The great silence: Marx and Engels on socialism	35
PART II
The defense of capital	67
3 The socialist calculation debate: the need for a reckoning	69
4 Capitalism's defenders: morality and organic economy	95
PART III
The renewed challenge to capital	123
5 Proposals for worker-managed market economies	125
6 The proposal for a participatory economy	147

PART IV

The end of capital 169

7 Introducing socialist laws of motion 171

Displacing the invisible hand of the market 173

The laws of motion of socialism in historical context 187

Extensions of the basic framework and related issues 207

8 The transition to socialism and the meaning of communism 227

Conclusion 247

Index 259