Development Cooperation of the 'New' EU Member States

Beyond Europeanization

Edited by

Ondřej Horký-Hlucháň
Head of the Research Department, Institute of International Relations, Prague, Czech Republic

Simon Lightfoot
Senior Lecturer, University of Leeds, UK
Contents

List of Figures and Tables  ix
Foreword: Lost in Transition?  x
Acknowledgements  xiii
Notes on Contributors  xv
List of Abbreviations  xx

Introduction: Diverging Theoretical Approaches to a Normative Research Field  1
Ondřej Horký-Hlucháň

Part I Members of the OECD Development Assistance Committee

1. Czechia: The ‘Foreign Development Cooperation’ as a Policy without Politics  25
   Ondřej Horký-Hlucháň

2. Poland: Attempts at Defining Aid by Solidarity, Democracy and Development  43
   Elżbieta Drążkiewicz-Grodzicka

3. Slovakia: A Donor Against Its Will?  64
   Ondrej Gažovič and Tomáš Profant

   Urška Zrinski and Maja Bučar

Part II Non-DAC Member States of the OECD

5. Estonia: Coming Out of the ‘Messianic’ Period  109
   Vahur Made

6. Hungary: Understanding the Mentality of a Premature Donor  130
   Balázs Szent-Iványi
Contents

Part III Other EU Member States since 2004

7 Latvia: Impact of the European Union and the Financial Crisis
   Pēteris Timofejevs Henriksson 151

8 Lithuania: A Hybrid Development Cooperation Policy
   Laure Delcour 170

Part IV EU Member States since 2007

9 Bulgaria: In Search of a New Focus
   Anelia Damianova 193

10 Romania: From Ambiguity to Outsourcing
    Mirela Oprea 218

Case Study 1: The Transfer of the Transition Experience: What Contribution to the EU Development Policy?
   Milan Konrád 234

Case Study 2: The European Transition Compendium: Much Ado about Nothing?
   Monika Hellmeyer 239

Conclusion: Reflections from the Outside
   Simon Lightfoot 242

References 252

Index 282