

Postcolonialism, Indigeneity and Struggles for Food Sovereignty

Alternative food networks in
subaltern spaces

Edited by Marisa Wilson

Contents

List of illustrations	vii
List of contributors	ix
Foreword by Melissa L. Caldwell	xi
Acknowledgements	xvii
Introduction: sovereign food spaces? Openings and closures	1
MARISA WILSON
1 Rethinking ‘alternative’: Māori and food sovereignty in Aotearoa New Zealand	15
CAROLYN MORRIS AND STEPHEN FITZHERBERT
2 Indigenous foodways in the Chittagong Hill Tracts of Bangladesh: an alternative-additional food network	34
H M ASHRAF ALI AND HELEN VALLIANATOS
3 Justice for the salmon: indigenous ways of life as a critical resource in envisioning alternative futures	57
SOPHIA WOODMAN AND CHARLES R. MENZIES
4 Food sovereignty, permaculture and the postcolonial politics of knowledge in El Salvador	81
NAOMI MILLNER
5 Possibilities for alternative peasant trajectories through gendered food practices in the Office du Niger	106
NICOLETTE LARDER

vi Contents

6	Local food, imported food, and the failures of community gardening initiatives in Nauru	127
	AMY K. MCLENNAN
7	Cuban exceptionalism? A genealogy of postcolonial food networks in the Caribbean	146
	MARISA WILSON
	Afterword	175
	PETER JACKSON
	Index	183