

167 284 7974

Taxing carbon as an instrument of green industrial policy in developing countries

Anna Pegels

Bonn 2016

Contents

1 Background: the dual challenge of poverty and climate change..... 1

2 Rationale, aims, and the international practice of carbon taxation..... 2

3 Taxing carbon in emerging and developing countries..... 7

3.1 Advantages and disadvantages of carbon taxes versus cap and trade for emerging and developing countries 7

3.2 Developing and emerging country cases 8

3.2.1 Mexico 8

3.2.2 Chile..... 9

3.2.3 South Africa 9

4 Impacts of carbon taxation on competitiveness as a main industrial policy aim..... 11

4.1 Competitiveness of firms 12

4.2 Competitiveness of sectors..... 13

4.3 National competitiveness 15

4.4 Mitigating negative and supporting positive effects on competitiveness..... 17

5 Considering social impacts 19

5.1 Employment 19

5.2 Income distribution 21

6 Conclusions..... 23

References