

Jürgen Backhaus · Günther Chaloupek
Hans A. Frambach
Editors

On the Economic Significance of the Catholic Social Doctrine

125 Years of Rerum Novarum

Contents

Introduction .....	1
Ursula Backhaus, Günther Chaloupek and Hans A. Frambach
An Economist's View of the Work of Wilhelm Emmanuel von Ketteler and Its Influence on the Encyclical Rerum novarum .....	11
Daniel Eissrich
Solidarism as the Center of Economy—The Economics of Heinrich Pesch .....	27
Hans A. Frambach
Public Economy (“Gemeinwirtschaft”) as a Concept of Social Development Policy—Examples of German Authors of the Late 19th Century .....	47
Karl-Heinz Schmidt
Lord Acton and Rerum novarum .....	59
Frits L. van Holthoorn
The False Pretensions of the Catholic Social Doctrine—The Critique of the Catholic Austrian Sociologist August M. Knoll (1900–1963) .....	69
Günther Chaloupek
125 Years Rerum novarum—The Theological Perspective .....	81
Peter Schallenberg
Dr. Johannes Antonius Veraart: A Catholic Economist on Rerum Novarum .....	89
Robert W.J. Jansen
The Roman Connection: From Rerum Novarum to Corporatism in the Netherlands .....	107
Andries Nentjes

The Justice and the Economics of Rerum novarum on Land . . . . .	125
Nicolaus Tideman
Rerum novarum and Its Principle on the Just Taxation of Immovable Properties . . . . .	135
Francesco Forte, Flavio Felice and Elton Beqiraj
Practical Wisdom for Social Innovation. How Christian Entrepreneurs Triggered the Emergence of the Catholic Social Tradition in Europe . . . . .	167
André Habisch	